PARIS—(U.P.)—A formal council of ministers was convoked today for 4 p. m. Monday, and it was believed that after the meeting the government would announce formal recognition of the Spanish nationalists.

WASHINGTON—Generalissimo Francisco Franco has promised Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler "full cooperation" in the use of Spanish air and naval bases in event of a war by the totalitarian powers against France and Britain, according to secret reports reaching high government circles in Washington.

The agreement, amounting to a virtual military alliance between the three Fascist states, is the price exacted by Italy and Germany for their aid in crushing Loyalist Spain, certain prominent American officials have been told.

Denials Expected.

So secret is the "understanding" that its publication is deemed almost certain to bring instant denials from Rome, Berlin and Burgos. As yet the alliance is informal, but nonetheless binding. No signatures have been affixed to a formal document and none is expected. Later, after the complete subjugation of the Loyalist regime, Franco, however, is expected formally to adhere to the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo anti-comintern pact.

The reported agreement aroused apprehension as to the fate of the efforts being made by Great Britain to "buy off" Franco with a huge reconstruction loan.

Under the alliance, as reported to Washington, Mussolini and Hitler have been given bases which would permit them to smash or make ineffectual the British fortifications at Gibraltar, attacking the stronghold from land side, where military experts consider it most vulnerable, and from huge counter-fortifications across the narrow straits at Ceuta, and at Algeciras on the Spanish mainland.

'Lifeline' Menaced.

With air and naval bases in the Balearic island, France's "lifeline" to Morocco would be menaced. Air attacks could be launched against France and England from air bases below the Spanish border.

Through submarine and air bases on the west coast of Spain, in the Canary islands and on the northwest coast of Africa, Italian and German subsea boats and planes would be able to harass

Snow Flurries To Bring Relief From Zero Wave Tonight

Relief is due tonight from a zero wave which enveloped Ohio today and brought a reading of one above in Mansfield, one of the lowest of the winter.

The weather bureau said snow flurries tonight will bring a rise in temperature, with Friday to be partly cloudy and warmer.

Bucyrus, with an official three below zero, was the coldest spot in Ohio this morning. Bellville, Richland county's "ice box," had an unofficial two below. It was nine above at Cleveland and Cincinnati and four above in Columbus.

The mercury rose to 17 above in Mansfield at noon today, while yesterday's high was 19 degrees. Average temperature for the past 24 hours was 10 degrees, or 20 degrees below normal.

At Martins Ferry in eastern Ohio, the temperature fell to seven above, bursting water mains and causing schools to close due to lack of sanitation.

The cold extended into the south, and freezing weather in northern Florida endangered the fruit crop.

HARRY L. HOPKINS

SEE HOPKINS IN PRESIDENCY BID

Washington Says Secretary of Commerce Seeks to Iron Out Breach in Iowa Speech.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The invasion of Iowa by Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins for the first public explanation of his business recovery program was interpreted in Washington today as his opening move in a drive for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1940.

If Hopkins has any presidential aspirations, he chose enemy country for his debut in the role of a guarded candidate—because the Democratic leaders of Iowa are pledged now to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

Friends of Hopkins deny he is tossing his hat into the presidential arena. They intimate he accepted an invitation to address the Des Moines Economic club tomorrow—out of hundreds of bids—to erase the last sorespot caused by his participation in President Roosevelt's famous purge. Hopkins got into that by declaring his preference for former Rep. Otha Wearin over Senator Guy M. Gillette (D.) of Iowa, who survived the attempted purge.

The Hopkins and Gillette feud is ended—stopped by a formal truce. They conferred recently, declared themselves friends, and mutually agreed the purge was water under the bridge.

This does not mean Gillette will help Hopkins toward the 1940 nomination. On the contrary Gillette told International News Service:

"In public polls on presidential preferences, Iowa has given prominent mention to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. He is an Iowan. Personally, if Henry Wallace

DENY CHARGES

Ashland Treasurer and Son Claim Innocence.

ASHLAND—H. O. Faber, Ashland county treasurer, and his son, Olen, former deputy treasurer, pleaded innocent today when arraigned before Common Pleas Judge H. E. Culbertson on grand jury indictments charging embezzlement, forgery and destruction of public records.

Judge Culbertson continued their bonds of $1,000 each and said he would set their trial date within 15 days. Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling was given 10 days to file a bill of particulars setting up the charges against the Fabers.

In 15 days the court will hear evidence concerning a motion of counsel for the Fabers to recover an alleged confession of the Fabers which was presented to the court last November.

The attorneys contended that the alleged confession was obtained by fraudulent methods and therefore should have no bearing on the case.

KIDNAP CHARGE FILED IN MEIGS G. O. P. DISPUTE

Wife of Committeeman Says Leader in Op[illegible] Abducted Husband.

FIGHT OVER PATRONAGE

Missing Man Seen on Highway Leading to West Va., With 3 Others in Auto.

(By United Press)

POMEROY—A warrant charging Charles Warner, 38, with kidnaping Timothy O. Bishop, 42, a member of the Meigs county Republican central committee, was filed here today by Bishop's wife, Laura.

Mrs. Bishop said her husband has been missing mysteriously since he left home Tuesday morning without his overcoat.

Coincident with the disappearance of Bishop, an unemployed telegrapher, the county Republican committee has been engaged in a bitter factional dispute over dispensing of patronage. The 42 members of the committee are divided into two factions, each claiming to be the legally constituted authority to handle patronage.

Headed By Attorney.

Bishop is a member of the Downing-Swift faction. Warner is affiliated with the faction headed by Albert Russell, Pomeroy attorney, but is not a member of the county committee. Warner is a former night club owner.

Warner had not been located today.

A meeting of the county Republican committee was called for tonight by State Chairman Ed Schorr but Bishop's absence caused his faction to seek postponement of the meeting.

"If one of your men had been kidnaped, would you want to attend the meeting?" Tom H. Leifhert, a political ally of Bishop, asked reporters.

Bishop was reported by friends to have started toward Parkersburg, W. Va., Tuesday in an automobile with three other men. Subsequently, Warner was reported to have been in Zanesville and Columbus.

Probe Mystery Call.

Ted Downey of Pomeroy reported seeing Bishop leave with the others. Downey thought Bishop was forced to accompany them.

Bishop was reported to have checked out of the Hotel Rogge at Zanesville at 3 a. m., Wednesday, after a telephone call had been made to Zanesville police. The person who made the call said:

"This is Tim Bishop. I understand you think I'm kidnaped. I just wanted to get away from the meeting and came on a trip with a couple of friends."

A hotel employe said Bishop left with "a man on either side of him."

BUNDSTERS GET SHOWER OF EGGS

Los Angeles Demonstrators Invade Hall, Toss Overripe Fruits.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Janitors were busy today at the Deutsches Haus, in Los Angeles, cleaning up debris left by a barrage of eggs and overripe fruit hurled at the building during a meeting of the German-American bund by hundreds of anti-Nazi demonstrators.

Police appeared to take little interest in an investigation of the demonstration, but did announce no one was injured.

Two windows were smashed and tension rose to a high pitch as two Socialist groups picketed the meeting last night.

It was shortly after the opening of the session that the windows were broken. Through them had been hurled eggs and spoiled fruit.

County Has 50 Per Cent Better Traffic Record

Lone Death Attributed to Accidents In First 8 Weeks of '39; Collisions In City Reduced Fifth.

Richland county has a 50 per cent better traffic record for the first eight weeks of this year than during the same period in 1938 as far as fatalities are concerned, statistics showed today.

One death has resulted from traffic accidents since the first of the year while the toll for the first two months of 1938 was two dead. A year ago, Mansfield had one fatality among the 11 persons injured in 175 automobile crashes which occurred on city streets.

Same Number Injured.

So far this year Mansfield has an unblemished record for fatalities although the same number have suffered injuries as was reported last year, police records show.

Property damage in collisions in which automobiles have figured also has been reduced considerably, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said.

During the first eight weeks of this year there have been 146 automobile accidents in which cars were damaged. This is nearly 20 per cent less than the 175 crashes which occurred a year ago.

Bates credited a recent "tightening up" of the traffic enforcement regulations for part of the improvement shown this year, coupled with more "safety-conscious" motorists.

DIES OF INJURIES

Bucyrus Girl, 11, Had Been Unconscious 11 Days.

BUCYRUS—A fractured skull received Feb. 12 when she was struck by an automobile as she crossed the street in front of her home today caused the death in city hospital of eleven-year-old Virginia Martin.

Virginia, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, never regained consciousness. She was struck by a car driven by Ohlin Habginlzel, McCutcheonsville, who drove over the curb and sidewalk to avoid hitting the child, police said. He was exonerated.

The child is survived by her parents and two sisters and two brothers, Louise, Lois, James and William. She was a student of the fifth grade at Lincoln school.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Ohio Beauty Operators Parade Before Assembly to Protest Cut Rate 'Waves'

Bald Legislator Becomes 'Master of Ceremonies' At Coiffure Show.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The beauty operators almost upset the equilibrium of the Ohio legislature here last night.

More than 60 of them, from all over the state, descended upon the senate commerce and labor committee to urge passage of a bill which they said would be the "salvation" of their business.

Sen. William J. Zoul (D.-Cuyahoga), "Daddy" of the state cosmetology board established in 1933, is author of the bill.

The scene was comparable to a style show as the bald, robust senator, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced the beauty experts to the committee.

At least, it was tantamount to a hairdressers' show as the witnesses displayed coiffures in many variations to the committee.

Every chair was filled in the capitol's largest hearing room and members of the legislature were lined against the walls. Zoul said it was reported that house committees had difficulty getting quorums, so many representatives "strayed" to the cosmetologist hearing.

The bill, on which no action was taken, is designed to eliminate what the beauty shop operators called the cut-rate competition of beauty culture schools.

Beauty schools would be prohibited from receiving compensation from persons upon whom their students work.

R. S. Douglas, a Youngstown shop operator, declared:

"When the schools charge 10 and 15 cents for a fingerwave, how in the name of God can the shops charge 50 cents?"

The measure also would raise the standards for schools and for graduates seeking to become practicing cosmetologists.

Opponents of the bill, including Paul Titus, Cleveland representative of the Ohio Beauty schools, appealed to the committee not to make the requirements so high as to bar young girls from the business.

"Why attack the girls?" he asked the operators. "Why not get together and raise your own standards?"

INQUIRY TURNS TO GAMING IN LIQUOR SPOTS

State Agents Check Devices in Establishments as They Continue Investigation.

BANNED BY REGULATIONS

Enforcement Chief Declines to Say If 'Visit' Result of Councilman's Letter.

State liquor agents conducting an investigation in the Mansfield liquor situation today had turned their attention making a thorough check on gambling devices in liquor establishments, it was learned today. Reliable sources said that the agents had visited numerous liquor establishments checking on pinball equipment and punch boards. State liquor regulations prohibits the display of any gambling device in a liquor establishment.

Chief Hears Nothing.

While permit holders were aware that the state men were in town, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that he knew nothing about their reported visit. He said that none of the enforcement officers had called at his office.

At Columbus, E. C. Cullison, chief of the enforcement division of the liquor department, was unwilling to comment on activities of the department, and would not say whether the check-up here was in response to a letter written by Councilman George C. Kyle to Wellington T. Leonard, member of the control board.

Cullison, however, said he had talked to Leonard concerning Kyle's letter and also pointed out that it has been the policy of his division to "tighten up" on the gambling provisions of the state law, especially in northern Ohio.

Silent On Situation Here.

He declined to answer a specific question as to whether agents were "tightening up" in Mansfield.

The state liquor board has the power to revoke licenses if it finds that gambling devices have been displayed in a place where liquor is sold.

Revelation that state agents were in Mansfield came yesterday and was confirmed by a number of permit holders.

SENDS APPEAL

Fletcher to Find Out If 'Civil Service Means Anything.'

Asserting that he intends to "find out whether civil service means anything," Arthur Fletcher, dismissed as state highway maintenance superintendent in Richland county, today had filed an appeal with the state civil service commission to regain his job.

Fletcher, who will leave his post Saturday on an order of State Highway Director Robert S. Beightler, described the dismissal as "purely political and without grounds."

The dismissal followed the filing of charges of malfeasance and coercion of employes with the state director. The charges, which Fletcher attributed to Republican leaders in the county, accused him of forcing his employes to wear campaign buttons and work for the Democratic candidate for governor in the November campaign.

The appeal will be heard within 30 days by the civil service commission. Fletcher is a Democrat.

QUIZZES CHIEF ON FROZEN PLUG

Wasn't Thawed Out Until 15 Hours After Downtown Fire, Director Learns.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger will be called before Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist this afternoon to explain why a hydrant found frozen last night was not thawed out by the department until 15 hours later.

Nist said that he would "dig into" the matter this afternoon, to find out why a fire hydrant at East Fourth and North Diamond streets, found frozen during a fire at the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store at 15 East Fourth street, at 7:30 p. m. yesterday, was not in working condition until 10 a. m. today.

The director pointed to the fire hazard that existed during the 15 hour period said he intended to ask the chief why firemen had delayed making use of a new steaming apparatus purchased by the city for such emergencies less than two months ago.

Meanwhile Chief Seeburger said that a test of all fire hydrants in the city today had been started. The last check of the hydrants was made about a week ago.

Seeburger blamed street department employes for the condition that prevailed last night. Seeburger said that his department might make an inspection of hydrants and find them in working condition, only to have street department employes use the hydrant later and not properly shut off or drain the hydrant.

His only comment on the reason why the hydrant was not thawed out last night after firemen had found it frozen was that "we don't thaw out hydrants at night."

Asked what would have happened if a large fire had broken out in that area a few hours later the chief said: "There are other hydrants in the vicinity."

The fire at the market however, fortunately was a minor blaze, caused by a defective chimney. It was extinguished with tank water carried on the pumper. Companies Nos. 1 and 2 answered the call.

British Tanker, Believed to Have Been Attacked, Radios She's Still Afloat.

CALL LETTERS PUZZLING

'PECC' Signature on Flash for Help Not Assigned, Marine Officers Declare.

(By Associated Press)

CHATHAM, Mass.—Veiled in silence, the fate of a mysterious, unidentified vessel which sent a startling report that she had been torpedoed and was sinking about 360 miles south of the Azores, today perplexed shipping heads and government officials of two continents.

No word has been heard from the ship since Radio Marine corporation here intercepted an electrifying SOS signed "PECC" yesterday, and the British steamer, Empress of Australia, reporting from the position given in the call for help, radioed she had sighted no sign of the ship or wreckage.

Vessel Safe, Message.

The mystery deepened when the Portishead radio station, England, reported that the British tanker Pecten had accepted a radio inquiry from the Associated Press at 4:23 a. m. (EST) giving assurance that the tanker, believed for a time to have been the vessel which sent the SOS, still was afloat.

Owners of the British vessel, the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum company, said "there is every indication" the vessel which sent the SOS was not the Pecten. Spokesmen for the company said they had radioed the vessel for information but added "we are not a bit anxious," pointing out the ship was 1,000 miles from the point where the call for help emanated.

They said the call letters used did not apply to British, but to foreign vessels.

The letter "C" in international code stands for "ten;" or Pec-ten. The Pecten was en route from Trinidad to Southampton.

Radio officials expressed belief that, if the message was genuine, the fact that it was not repeated

Pastor Talks At Annual Party Of Mansfield Sorosis

An inspirational talk entitled, "Why Be Unhappy?" was given yesterday by Rev. A musical program preceded the talk with Mrs E D Gibson, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Ireland, playing the "Allegro" movement of the "Concerto" by Viotte. Mrs. H. D. Bishop then appeared in colonial costume and sang "Beneath the Weeping Willow Tree" by Hopkinson, and an old English folk song "A Frog Would a Wooing Go," to the piano accompaniment of Mrs. L. E Rahn

Trio music was given in conclusion by Mrs Fred Troll, Mrs LeRoy McGinty, and Mrs. William Bishop, with Mrs. H. D. Bishop at the piano. The colonial costumed women sang "Grandfather's Clock" by Grey, "Minuet" by Beethoven, and "Miss Nancy's Gown From London Town" by Chadwick.

HOBOES IN U. S. SET AT MILLION BY 'KING JEFF'

'Monarch' Estimates 'Tramps' at Half Million and 'Bums' at 50,000.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — Jeff Davis, who bears lightly his title of "American king and world emperor of the hoboes," shambled in and apologized for his polo coat:

"I got it in Hollywood—second hand."

From a baggy pocket, dangling by a thread at one corner, he proudly drew forth the "1939 Yearbook, Encyclopedia and Reference Manual of the Hoboes of America, Inc."

Jeff explained that this year's manual was an "invisible source of malformation," even if he did have to edit it in his spare time while giving technical direction to a movie based on hobo life.

Some gems culled from the Yearbook with the assistance of Jeff's smudged thumb:

Sure, He's a Gentleman.

"A hobo is a gentleman of the road. The name is derived from the Latin (homa,) means man and (bonas,) means good—Good Man—this he tries to be at all times in dealing with his feilow man, and on the road he will share his last nickel with ones less fortunate."

Davis begins his article on "Here's Our Story—Believe It or Not" with an admission that "it is full of grammatical errors," but insists he will write the truth, which he says is "more than others have done."

"A hobo is not a hobo by choice. Circumstances alter cases—and depressions alter circumstances."

Davis draws on the 30-year-old constitution of the hobo organization to show the distinction between a hobo, tramp and bum. Set forth in the preamble of the constitution is the declaration:

"There is a vast difference between hobo, tramp and bum, for a hobo will work, a tramp won't and a bum couldn't if he wanted to. A hobo believes the world owes him an opportunity, while a tramp thinks the world owes him a living and the bum just exists."

Davis estimates America's population includes 1,000,000 hoboes, more than 500,000 tramps and 50,000 bums.

Bums Waste Life.

"Bums do not live long," he said. "They have wasted their young days as young tramps, been in and out of jails, becoming in their old age victims of drink, disease, crime or 'dope.' The average age of a bum is close to 60—canned heat dries up his insides and in most cases he meets with sudden death."

The hobo handbook ends with a protest against restrictions on the movements of wandering "gentlemen of the road." Their booklet says:

"Water, if it does not move, becomes stagnant. Air must change, even land is always on the go, for they say the world moves on its axis. But, as for the poor man, if he decides to make a move he must ask permission, and if he is broke permission is refused in many states of America.

"How come? Since when did they put a silk hat on Liberty?"

To support its position the booklet offers the admonition: "Don't forget — the Son of Man hath no where to lay His head."

King Jeff closed the Yearbook and called from the doorway:

"So long, pal. My special car is waitin' down in the Kedzie avenoo yards."

WRONG OUTLET

Boy, 10, Has Talents of Master Forger, Judge Finds.

LONDON — (AP) — A magistrate in suburban Greenwich has discovered a ten-year-old boy with the qualifications of a master forger.

"No one could produce a more accurate copy of a person's handwriting," said the magistrate after he had asked junior to show him a sample of his penmanship.

The boy's skill and devotion for his widowed mother got her into trouble. Junior, the court was told, copied on his mother's public relief order "eggs and milk for twenty months."

The magistrate advised junior who also composes music, to use his talent along proper lines.

WRITES OF BUSINESS SUCCESS OF EX-MANSFIELD WOMAN, 81

The business career of a former Mansfield woman was the subject of an article in last Sunday's New York Times in which her business history was traced and some of her business and labor philosophies outlined.

Mrs. Charles B. Knox, 81, the former Rose Markward of Mansfield, now president of the Knox Gelatine company of Johnstown, N. Y., probably has been more "written up" than any other woman industrialist in the country during the past decade, and the story of how she took over the business at the death of her husband many years ago is familiar to thousands of persons.

But few knew of her original labor policies which have endeared her to her employes and to her community. Mrs. Knox initiated a five-day week in her plant years before organized labor had ever suggested the idea, with the same wages as they had received for five and a half days. The only stipulation was that the output be the same as before.

There are no time clocks in the Knox plant and employes are given time off for sickness and dentistry work.

Although 81 years old, she works six hours a day at her desk in the plant. A son and grandson hold executive positions but her hand still guides the business.

One of her most amazing accomplishments was that her publicity policy, directed to women instead of men, kept up the business so well that during the depression she added three more plants.

Mrs. Knox attended Mansfield schools but left here a number of years ago when she married Charles Knox. She paid a flying visit to old friends here several years ago.

DEBUNKS SCARE OF GAS IN WAR

Chemistry Professor Says Propaganda Exaggerates Perils of Fumes.

(By United Press)

GENEVA, N. Y.—Propaganda has exaggerated the effectiveness of gas warfare, believes Dr. R. H. Bullard, professor of chemistry at Hobart College, and nationally known authority on poison gas.

During the World war, Dr. Bullard said gas used in an effort to break the deadlock which had resulted from trench warfare; it did not succeed then, and despite improvements in the technique of disseminating gas, it would not be effective now. Quoting statistics from the war, Bullard showed that nine out of ten men gassed were back on the firing line within a short time, whereas only half of those wounded by shell fire were able to return to active duty.

Asked about the possibility of a city such as London or Berlin being wiped out by a gas attack from enemy airplanes, Dr. Bullard said that a light gas, such as chlorine, would not be able to penetrate a building whose doors and windows were closed, and would blow away in a few hours. A heavy gas, such as mustard gas, would not touch civilians who climbed as high as the second story of a building, and clean-up squads which all European cities have secretly trained would mop up the gas within a few hours.

Dr. Bullard quotes statistics tending to show that gas rarely causes blindness, tuberculosis, and other ailments which have been imputed to it.

Neighbor Saves Three Tots In Fire During Parents' Absence.

YAKIMA, Wash.—(INS)—It took a one-armed neighbor to extricate three little children from a burning home after their parents went to a movie and left the stove stoked to the brim. The children had been locked inside the burning building and their cries brought George W. Kent who freed them.

PEG LEG HIT BY CONSCIENCE

Jeweler Gives Up Diamonds He Took as Appraiser.

MOSCOW— (AP) —Religion is frowned on in the U. S. S. R., but a lively conscience still wins admiration now and then. Newspapers recently reported with satisfaction the case of a jeweler who stumped into a police station, removed his wooden leg and poured from its hollow interior a flood of diamonds and other gems, appropriated many years ago while he was working as an appraiser.

"I couldn't bear the shame of hiding treasure stolen from the Soviet government," he explained.

Tygers Close Season Against Canton McKinley Friday

COACH RUSS MURPHY'S 1938-39 basketball edition rings down the curtain on its regular season Friday night when it clashes with the Canton McKinley Bulldogs on the Senior high hardwood.

The Tygers, smarting from the 24-23 overtime whipping administered by Massillon Tuesday night, will be attempting to chalk up their initial win over a Canton McKinley combine.

Earlier this season Mansfield dropped a seven-point decision to the Bulldogs, and Friday it will be out to even matters. How well the Tygers will do against the aggressive Canton outfit is questionable, but if they perform as they did against New Philadelphia, the Bulldogs are in for trouble.

Mansfield possesses a fine passing attack, and if it can get it to clicking in the early minutes the team has a splendid chance of topping the invaders.

Coach Murphy's proteges, in their last meeting with the Bulldogs, failed to move until the last frame, but when they did McKinley couldn't stop them.

Ohio State Relay Team Tops Pitt

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Ohio State's mile relay team defeated Pittsburgh in the feature event of Cleveland's Scholastic relays yesterday when Harley Howells, Western Conference quarter mile champion, more than made up a 12-yard handicap on the last lap of the race. The Buckeye team, which included Art Pagel, Durwood Cooperrider and Jack Sulzman was timed at 3:26.4.

Bishops Stop Ohio U. Team

(By Associated Press)

Ohio Wesleyan's cagers have served notice that Buckeye conference laurels are anybody's quarry.

The Bishops thrust Ohio university out of second place and grabbed the niche for themselves last night, taking a 36 to 23 victory over the Bobcats.

A dazzling defensive battle held the Bobcats in check. Ohio's top scorer, forward Baumholtz, was able to sink only six points. Hartman, Wesleyan forward, paced the victors with 13 markers. The Bishops held a 19-6 lead at the half.

Marshall occupies the Buckeye crow's nest with four victories and one defeat. Wesleyan now has five wins against two losses Ohio U. is in third place with four victories and two defeats.

John Carroll drubbed Case in an Ohio conference game, 47 to 36. Marietta took another loop tilt from Muskingum, 37 to 34. With the count tied at 34-all, guard Young meshed three gift shots to give Marietta the victory.

In an intersectional set-to, Toledo university bagged its 16th victory of the season by trouncing the University of Detroit, 57 to 40. Chuckovits the Rocket's star, scored 18 points.

At Muncie, Ind., Akron university's Zippers edged out the touted Ball State quintet, 29 to 28. Mike Fernella, with the score 28-all, looped a charity toss for Akron.

Western Reserve breezed to a 49 to 33 decision over Baldwin-Wallace. The University of Cincinnati completed its home schedule by scalping Miami's Redskins, 46 to 31. Roanoke's powerful court machine rolled over Marshall at Huntington, W. Va., 46 to 44.

THE Mayflower Congregational outfit handed the touted First Lutherans their second straight defeat in an overtime affair at the Y. M. C. A. last night to cling onto a share of first place in the hectic Second round title race of the Church Class A league.

It was Mayflower's third win, and enabled it to retain a share of the lead with Temple Emanuel and Park Avenue Baptist.

Temple smothered St. John's Evangelicals, 47 to 32, First M. E. scored its second win by defeating Central M. E., 25 to 22, and the Park Avenue Baptist team downed Episcopal, 21 to 13, in the other games.

The Lutherans and Mayflower quintets battled through two overtime periods, before Scott collected a goal and Botzer added a foul conversion to give the winners a triumph.

Mayflower staged a last-period rally to come from behind and knot the score at 22-22 and force the battle into overtime stanzas.

First Lutheran was leading, 7 to 4, in the first frame, 9 to 5, at the rest period, and, 16 to 12, at the opening of the last quarter. Botzer topped the individual scoring with 11 points, and Martin led the Lutherans with seven.

Temple, paced by Lerner, who contributed 12 points, gained the lead over St. John in the first period and was never headed. The Temple team was leading, 28 to 12, at the half.

In the other games, Vogle collected 10 points to lead First M. E. to its victory and the Baptist grabbed an early advantage to halt Episcopal.

Joins Senators

There's a story behind Mike Green's tryout with the Washington Senators at their Orlando, Fla., training camp. It seems that Mike, a young Montanian, knows he's good, but needed a chance to prove it. So he wrote to his senator, Burton K. Wheeler, requesting the solon to use a bit of influence. The tryout is the result. Well, Mike, it's up to you now!

Abolish Javelin Throw In Relays

DELAWARE—(U.P.)—Abolition of the javelin throwing event at the annual Ohio Wesleyan high school relays April 29 was reported today by George Gauthier, Ohio Wesleyan athletic director and relays manager. He said the event had been ruled out by the Ohio High School Athletic association and that few high schools will have athletes qualified to compete.

Babe Myers Replaces Ryan On Mat Card

Minnesota Lassie Meets Women's Lightweight Champion Friday.

MISS MILDRED BURKE of Kansas City, will defend her women's wrestling crown against Miss Babe Myers of St. Paul, Minn., it was learned here today. An error by Miss Myers' booking agent led to an announcement that Miss Burke would wrestle Gladys Ryan and local Matchmaked Tim Nolan has just received notification of the change.

The feminine mat stars have been signed to appear in Mansfield as a special attraction on Friday's wrestling program in the Armory, which is topped by the meeting of Firo Rinaldi and Whitey Wahlberg. Miss Burke has held the women's lightweight laurel for more than two years.

Women have successfully competed in most of the sports ordinarily followed by men. They've tried their hands at swimming, golf, tennis, hunting, fishing—everything, probably, that the male sex has claimed as its own. Wrestling is one of the last remaining frontiers of male achievement and Miss Burke is definite proof that even this rugged diversion will fall before the invading fair sex.

Babe Myers is highly-rated in the vicinity of Minnesota and Matchmaker Tim Nolan is of the opinion that Milly will have her hands full when she attempts to dispose of the red-headed challenger.

Whitey Wahlberg, only wrestler to score over Mephisto since the "great one" regained his lost crown, also has a batttle on his hands. Firo Rinaldi, Milwaukee, Wis., is rumored to be a definite threat for world honors in the division.

Sport Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE

HONOLULU—(U.P.)—The biggest sport centers in the United States are not Madison Square Garden or the Chicago Coliseum or any other vast piles of stone and steel set amidst the roar of great cities. They are right here in the Hawaiian Islands.

Hidden deep in the miles and miles of green and waving sugar cane, on the tremendous plantations of Oahu, Waimanalo, Kahuku, Ewa, Waipahu, and a score of others, are the biggest sports layouts in our country and, perhaps, in all the world.

I made a trip around the Island of Oahu, the fertile mound in the Pacific on which Honolulu is located, and during the 85-mile drive I saw more athletic activity than I did in 45,000 miles of driving through the mainland last year. Each plantation is better equipped for recreation than the average college. Dozens of baseball diamonds and football fields, scores of tennis courts, all lighted for night play. Golf courses, some carved right out of cane patches, others natural links hard by the sea. Splendid gymnasiums are a part of each plantation, as are highly skilled recreation directors.

* * *

Consider the Waipahu plantation, for example. There are 700 registered baseball players and some 40 teams. There are 17 softball teams, 19 basketball teams, 12 football squads, and five tennis clubs with more than 30 members each. In addition there is a swimming team, 40 wrestlers, 50 boxers, 40 track and field performers, a bicycle racing club of 45, and 19 volleyball teams. There are 73 clubs of all sorts and descriptions at Waipahu plantation, not to mention a 40-piece band and 11 swing orchestras. Waipahu also has a sipa-sipa team of some 50 members, sipa-sipa being an island game which is a dead ringer for volleyball except that the ball is handled with the feet instead of the hands.

The competition is inter-plantation mostly, and the rivalry among the sugar workers is as keen as that between Harvard and Yale. The football is especially good.

* * *

Some of the mainland colleges, who are not any too careful in seeing that their athletes are in top condition, could learn from the plantation setup. An injury is an injury here, and not something to cover up to help a coach keep his job, and the plantation medicos keep a stop-watch check on the thousands and thousands of athletes. Even a baseball umpire or a sportswriter has little more time to play than the plantation boys. Their eight-hour working day ends around 2 or 3 in the afternoon, which is good work if you can get it. In fact I am considering taking a sugar plantation job myself. I think I would be a pretty good sipa-sipa player, being as it is a game which involves the feet and not the head.

Baseball Training Notes

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(U.P.)—First sparks from the spring training camps: Bill Terry plans to let Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher and Slick Castleman, all victims of one kind of ailment or another last season, set their own pace this spring training season and pour the heavy work on the youngsters. . . . Schumacher, weighing 200 pounds, most he's ever scaled, says he won't know a thing about his arm, operated on last winter, until he tries it out at Baton Rouge next month. . . . Schumacher, something of a hitter in his own right, brought two bats along with him and if his arm fails to come around he's fast enough to become an outfielder. . . .

* * *

Eighteen Brooklyn Dodgers are quartered here at the Hotel Eastman. . . . Three players who were ordered to report failed to show up and Manager Leo Durocher considers them holdouts. . . . They are Van Mungo, Forest Presnell and Blimp Phelps. . . . Durocher is plenty peeved at Phelps and plans to make the hefty catcher go through the same sort of conditioning the rest of the Dodgers are taking here when he reports to the Clearwater camp. . . . "Phelps needs the work worse than any other player and he's not signing just to dodge it," ssid Durocher.

* * *

Durocher won $662, first prize, in a bingo game at the Belverdere club the other night. . . . "This is going to be my lucky season," chirped Leo when he landed his bingo. . . . The Dodgers' work here consists of two classes of calisthenics under the direction of Eddie McCormick, Artie McGovern's assistant. . . . The program consists of a six-mile hike over the mountains, bunting practice on the hotel lawn and the baths. . . . Fred Fitzsimmons came here in great shape after a winter of golf and outdoor exercise. Pete Coscarart, ticketed to be Brooklyn's second baseman, has been putting on weight here. . . .

* * *

Jimmy Foxx, Lefty Grove, Jack Wilson and Joe Cronin of the Red Sox are here taking preliminary training before going to Sarasota, Fla. . . . They play golf every day and take the baths but do not climb the mountains. . . . Wilson went with the Dodgers one day but quit the next.

Moser Tallies Goal In Overtime Period to Give Drummer Boys Victory; Bluejays Top Ontario.

By CHARLES MARTIN

TWO quintets that were not considered as outstanding threats in the pre-tournament predictions, are marking time today along with a pair of favorites ready to resume hostilities in the semi-finals of the county meet at Mansfield high Saturday afternoon.

The underdogs, Shiloh and Bellville, registered stunning upsets in the second round contests at Senior high last night before a capacity gathering to advance in the tourney.

Coach Raymond Richards' Drummer Boys gave 1,500 fans who packed the gymnasium some thrilling moments by topping a favored Madison high team, 19 to 17, in a "suicide" overtime affray. While Bellville, cellar team in the county league race this season, polished off Ontario high, 32 to 20.

Butler Has Scare.

Butler ran into a scare in the opening game, eking out a 27 to 26 decision over Union, and Lucas, with its towering forwards, Tom Greulich and Bob Crawford, sparking the attack, defeated a surprising Lexington outfit, 37 to 31.

Robert Moser, Shiloh's high-scoring forward, gave his team the verdict over Madison in the opening minute of the overtime with a nifty mid-court shot.

Moser not only supplied the winning points, but was the main factor in enabling his teammates to remain in the thick of the battle all the way.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
(Semi-Finals).
1 p. m.—Butler vs. Shiloh.
2 p. m.—Bellville vs. Lucas.
8 p. m.—Consolation finals.
9 p. m.—Finals.

The contest, highlighted by great defensive play by both clubs, saw Moser sink difficult side shots with little effort as he contributed 18 points to Shiloh's total score. And he sank the foul shot that knotted the score at 17-all to send the game into the overtime.

Madison staged a spectacular last-period rally to overcome Shiloh's early lead only to see Moser tie the score in the fading seconds of the game.

The Drummer Boys, playing without the services of their star guard, Hamman, limited the Rams to a free throw in the opening period to hop into a 6 to 1 advantage. Shiloh was ahead, 14 to 11, at the intermission, and was still leading, 14 to 11, at the end of the third frame. Joe Miller collected 10 points to top the Madison scoring.

Bellville, playing inspired ball, went into the lead in the initial stanza and was never headed. With Howard Hamilton setting the pace, Coach Royd Hodges' youngsters led, 9-4, in the first quarter, 19-7 at halftime, and 23-13 going into the final chapter. Hamilton hit the basket for 16 points to cop individual honors.

Bill Martin's brilliant rebounding, which enabled Bellville to gain control of the ball most of the time, was a decisive factor of the melee.

Bob Burgett's Bulldogs, with two of the regulars, Kenny Miller and Wilson, on the sidelines, never gained the lead over Union until midway in the final period when Grubb collected a goal to break a 22-all tie.

Union caught Butler flatfooted in the first quarter to hop into a 7 to 4 lead. Butler rallied to knot the score at 14-all, and the third frame ended with the score deadlocked at 18-18. Grubb was high-point man for the winners with nine points, and DeLong led Union with the same number.

The John Reese-coached Minutemen exhibited a fine floor game, but were not capable of successfully combatting the Lucas team's height advantage. Lexington rallied in the final stanza, but could not overcome the winners' commanding lead.

Gains Lead In First Period.

Indiana Needs Three Wins to Cinch Title

Leads Buckeyes by 1 Game in Big Ten Race.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—With cessation of hostilities scheduled for March 6, the Big Ten basketball race today narrowed down to a nip-and-tuck affair between Indiana and Ohio State with the Hoosiers in the pole position.

By winning its three remaining games, Indiana can win the pennant regardless of Ohio's fortune in its final three encounters. Indiana has lost one game while Ohio has dropped two.

The path to fame, however, promised to be a rocky one for the offensively strong Hoosiers. In order to preserve their record, the black shirted lads must dispose of Minnesota this Saturday night and then come right back on Monday to upset Purdue. The windup game is with Michigan.

Minnesota and Purdue alike have fine teams capable of surprising the most formidable opponent. It was on the possibility that either the Gophers or Boilermakers would smash the Hoosier drive that Ohio based its flag hopes.

Ohio itself was not faced with an easy three-game card. Saturday night the scarlet and gray lads meet Wisconsin in Madison and then on Monday arrive in Ann Arbor for a bout with a traditional foe, Michigan. The season finale is in Columbus March 4 against Purdue.

TONY MEETS FELDMAN IN MATCH TONIGHT

MIAMI, Fla. —(AP)— Tony Galento, brought into better fighting trim by a few extra bottles of beer, declared himself ready to go into the ring tonight and kayo Abe Feldman in masterful style.

Promoters of the heavyweight scrap, successful in selecting the only overcast day Miami has seen recently, postponed the fight from last night.

taking the lead late in the first. Lucas led, 10-9, in the initial period, 18-15 at the intermission, and 28-17 at the start of the fourth. Greulich slipped in 18 points to set the scoring pace, and Crawford added 13 to the cause. Bill Shafer led Lexington with 15 points.

The semi-finals, which open at 2 p. m. Saturday, toss Butler against Shiloh in the first game and Bellville against Lucas. A foul shooting contest will follow the last game. The finals will be staged at 8 p. m. Saturday.

Cunningham Beats Borican In Mile

BOSTON — (AP) — Glenn Cunningham, the kiting Kansan, still is the greatest miler of them all.

Less than 48 hours after John Borican stunned the track world by beating the durable veteran in the "1000" at Newark, Cunningham wiped out the setback by administering a crushing beating to the New Jersey negro star, who finished last in a field of five in the Veterans of Foreign Wars meet last night.

Cunningham turned on his justly famed kick on the next to the last lap and raced to a two-yard victory over Chuck Fenske in 4.15.5 for his 21st consecutive victory at his favorite distance.

Tommy Deckard, who upset Don Lash at Newark Monday, proved it was not a fluke by taking the world record holder, a fellow Hoosier, into camp again, in the two mile event in 9:13.4.

ANNUAL ARENA RELAYS OPEN IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Headed by the mile relay teams of the University of Pittsburgh and Ohio State, 631 high school and college track men invaded Cleveland today for the first annual arena relays.

A total of 32 relay races, ranging from one-half mile to four miles were scheduled. Top billing went to the special Ohio State-Pitt mile event that brought Johnny Woodruff, negro star from Pitt, and Harley Howells, anchor man on the championship state team, into direct competition for the first time.

CIENCIA WINS DERBY

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — The name of a great little filly, Ciencia, took its place in the hall of Santa Anita derby champions today, the first of her sex to be so honored. Turf followers began looking ahead to the running of the $10,000 San Antonio handicap Saturday, and the big race of the meeting the following week, the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

Ciencia won the $50,000 added race yesterday by five lengths.

MACE BROWN NAMED IN BASEBALL'S WHO'S WHO

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mace Brown has made the grade. It took one of the neatest jobs of relief pitching since fireman Wilcy Moore was saving the Yankees a dozen years back, but the Pittsburgh Pirates' big right-hander finally has been included in the new "Who's Who in Baseball." For three years, Mace wore a track from the Buc bullpen to pitching box with never a tumble. He was a name on the roster and in the box scores, but never rang the bell in the gold-plated directory of the diamond. Last season, he broke a record by going to work in 51 games.

PICK RIGGS, MAKO FOR DAVIS CUP MATCHES

NEW YORK — (INS) — Here are the big four who will carry the banner of the United States in the Davis cup tennis matches this year: Bobby Riggs of California, Wayne Sabin of Oregon, Gene Mako of California and Sidney Wood of New York.

Theortically, of course, there is a wide open race for places on the team. But for all practical purposes, an official who is a power in tennis said today, there is no race and the rest of the hopefuls might just as well hang up their racquets.

WORLD'S BEST WHITE WYANDOTTES
WE ship thousands of chicks to every State in the Union each year and have several hundred testimonial letters in our files from customers in all parts of the country telling of wonderful results our chicks have produced. Dr. K. F. Weller, D. D. S., Wilkinsburg, Pa. writes, "The White Wyandottes I have of your breeding on my farm have done so well and please us so much we are building another hen house and when completed want to get more of your stock." Mr. C. V. Easterwood, Memphis, Tenn. "Have experimented for the last 6 years with different breeds and have decided to standardize on your White Wyandottes. I have hens from chicks purchased from you in 1937 and they have outlaid Rocks, Buff Minorcas, and AAA White Leghorns, two to one. All receiving the same feed and care, and when you cook one you really have a dish full of chicken." Mr. Ralph Van Tuyl, Elmira, N. Y., says "Have had your chicks twice before. As to Wyandottes you have the ONLY Strain." Why not give us an order for chicks that really have good sound breeding back of them for 38 years instead of getting just ordinary hatchery chicks. Our prices are about the same as hatchery chicks. Sherman Bowden & Son, Canal 5310, Mansfield, Ohio.

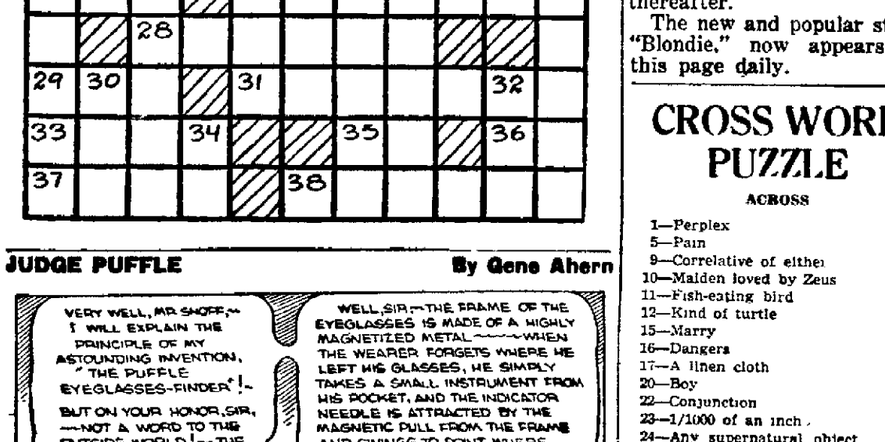
PAM—Alarmed! By A. W. Breworton

DAVID HAS A DINNER DATE WITH PAM — HE IS GOING TO SPEND HIS LAST FEW HOURS WITH HER, BEFORE CATCHING HIS MIDNIGHT PLANE!
SWEETER, MORE ALLURING THAN EVER — I WONDER IF SHE STILL CARES AS MUCH? — OR — HAS THAT RICH MAN — CHANGED THINGS? — SERVE ME RIGHT — IF HE HAS!
2-23
I — I'M GOING TO ASK HER TONIGHT — I'M GOING TO ASK HER — TO MARRY ME!
MEANWHILE, HERE'S PAM, BADLY WORRIED
OH — I WONDER WHAT CAN BE KEEPING CLARE? — EVEN IF SHE DID WORK LATE, SHE'D BE HERE BY NOW! — AND SHE SAID SHE WAS COMING STRAIGHT HOME FROM THE OFFICE!
ALMOST TIME FOR DAVID — AND SHE HASN'T COME YET! — I — I HATE TO LEAVE BEFORE SHE COMES — I'D BE WORRIED ALL EVENING!
OH! — I DO WISH SHE'D COME!
CAN'T TELL DAVID WITHOUT EXPOSING CLARE'S TROUBLE AT THE OFFICE!
IS PAM NEEDLESSLY ALARMED? PERHAPS NOT!



NOTICE!

Because, through no fault of its own, The News-Journal has been printing the comic strip "Tailspin Tommy" ahead of the regular release dates, appearance of the feature has been temporarily suspended.

However, the comic strip has not been discontinued.

It will reappear with no interruption in the continuity of the story on Saturday, Feb. 25, in the week-end green tabloid, in which it will appear thereafter.

The new and popular strip, "Blondie," now appears on this page daily.

JUDGE PUFFLE By Gene Ahern

VERY WELL, MR. SNOFF,— I WILL EXPLAIN THE PRINCIPLE OF MY ASTOUNDING INVENTION, "THE PUFFLE EYEGLASSES-FINDER"! — BUT ON YOUR HONOR, SIR, — NOT A WORD TO THE OUTSIDE WORLD! — THE IDEA MEANS MILLIONS TO ME!
WELL, SIR, — THE FRAME OF THE EYEGLASSES IS MADE OF A HIGHLY MAGNETIZED METAL — — — WHEN THE WEARER FORGETS WHERE HE LEFT HIS GLASSES, HE SIMPLY TAKES A SMALL INSTRUMENT FROM HIS POCKET, AND THE INDICATOR NEEDLE IS ATTRACTED BY THE MAGNETIC PULL FROM THE FRAME AND SWINGS TO POINT WHERE THE GLASSES CAN BE FOUND! — — REMARKABLE, EH? — —
NOT BAD!
YOU'VE GOT SOMETHING, JUDGE! —

PLANE STOCKS CLIMB SLOWLY IN QUIET DAY

Industrial Shares Also Show Small Increases; Building Activity Gain Seen.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Aviation and miscellaneous industrial shares looked up a bit in a quiet stock market today.

Higher were Westinghouse, Du Pont, Celanese, Boeing, Douglas, Goodyear, Kennecott and Santa Fe.

Returning from the recess in markets over Washington's birthday, traders apparently found nothing in the news to clarify spring prospects in business at home and in the European political situation.

Another spurt in raw silk enlivened commodity markets. Bonds were mixed and narrow.

A substantial increase in building contracts compared with last year moved some Wall Street analysts to look for improvement in industrial activity as the approach of spring speeds outdoor construction.

Strength in some basic commodity prices, particularly steel scrap, raw silk and livestock, also was rated a favorable portent. The "Iron Age" said a recent rise in scrap seemed to point to higher steel operations, despite the dip in production this week.

Steel circles heard reports additional upward revisions in some finished products were in prospect following markups in prices of galvanized barbed wire and merchant pipe.

MYSTERY VEILS SHIP 'ATTACK'

Two Continents Baffled by SOS Radio Report That Boat Was Torpedoed.

indicated the vessel had plunged to the bottom immediately.

Lending credence to the affair was a report from Horta, the Azores, by shipping officials who said officers of a vessel which reached there last Friday announced sighting two submarines of unidentified nationality in the vicinity of Fayal Island, in the general area from which the SOS was sent.

The message, picked up by the Portuguese navy department at Lisbon, Portugal, as well as by the station here, said: "Have been torpedoed by unknown submarine. Holed below water line. Sinking. Urgent."

The call letters by which the message was signed—"PECC"—are not assigned to any vessel at present, leading to a wide range of conjecture. The region from which the SOS emanated was far east of the area where the U. S. fleet is engaged in war games and west of the waters where Insurgent Spanish submarines have operated.

BRITAIN HEARS AIR RAID PERIL CAN BE ENDED

Greatly Increased Safety is Specious Cited as Example for London.

(By United Press)

LONDON—A ton of bombs is needed now to kill one person, due to the efficient air raid precaution system, Cyril Healey told a meeting of the Institution of Structural Engineers in an address on "Air Raids, Structures and Air Raid Precautions in Barcelona."

Healey went to Barcelona recently in no private capacity as a structural engineer to study air raid precautions. He said the inhabitants of Barcelona "have learned the lesson and their trench-digging schemes are marvelous." Adequate protection, he said, can be ensured to all the inhabitants of England by working out schemes similar to those operated in Barcelona.

"If the civil population is sufficiently protected against attack, the effectiveness of air raids as an offensive weapon is to a large degree neutralized.

"Less than a year ago the number of shells counting from air raids in Barcelona was never less than several hundred in each raid. Now it runs into a total of eight casualties to kill one person.

Two Killed by 450 Bombs.

"Out of 450 bombs which fell during the five days from Dec. 5 to 10, the casualties were approximately two people killed, 19 injured, 21 horses killed and one motor lorry seriously injured. Credit for this must be given to the air raid precautions arrangements.

"The assertion that anti-aircraft fire can prevent definite military objectives is supported by the fact that although nearly 2,000 raids have taken place and tens of thousands of bombs have been rained down during the war, gas works still are undamaged and the power works, although they have suffered, have never been put out of commission.

"In Barcelona there are shelters for one-half of the population and seats in them for one-quarter. It is very important that in this country these shelters be so fitted up that people need not leave them.

"There should be kitchens from which rations could be served. In this country, if we make deep shelters, they would be there for all time and if they were wide enough they could be used for storage purposes in peace time."

HITS CONTROL

Wygant Cites Disadvantages of 'Socialized Medicine.'

Disadvantages of government control of medicine were outlined by Dr. W. E. Wygant last night in a talk to members of the C. H. Huston class of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Dr. Wygant's topic was "Socialized Medicine."

"The federal control of medicine would result in some real disadvantages such as discouragement of professional initiative toward self-improvement, the abandonment of free choice of physician by the patient, and tremendous national cost," he told the class.

Dr. Wygant indicated the need for a graduated scale of fees in accord with income and suggested that local bureaus could determine, through investigation, the particular classification the patient would be entitled to.

The next meeting of the class will be an oyster supper at the church, March 29.

SECOND MEETING

Horsemen Hear O. S. U. Extension Specialist Today.

The second in a series of four meetings for Richland county horsemen was scheduled for this afternoon at the courthouse.

L. P. McCann, extension specialist at Ohio State university, is in charge of the weekly meetings which deal with the selection and care of horses. His topic today was "Feeding and Rations." Other meetings will be held Thursday, March 2 and March 9. The sessions open to all county farmers were arranged by County Agent George B. Gans.

SAFETY ERRORS FATAL TO 8,000

Pedestrians Die Needlessly, Just for Violating Simple Rules of Traffic.

(By United Press)

HARTFORD, Conn. — Disregard of six simple rules of safety cost 8,000 pedestrians their lives last year, according to insurance actuaries.

They died needlessly because they:

Crossed at intersections with no signals.

Stepped into the street from behind parked automobiles.

Crossed highways between intersections.

Walked on rural highways with their backs to traffic.

Played in the streets and roadways.

Crossed intersections diagonally.

Pedestrians were involved in 30 per cent of the approximately 32,000 fatal accidents during 1938. Pedestrians who died through their own carelessness represented 25 per cent of the total fatalities.

"The man afoot is not always the innocent victim in automobile accidents, as is often supposed," the actuaries concluded.

These 8,000, they pointed, did not include persons who were killed by automobiles as they stepped off street cars or buses or were involved in other types of accidents in which they were not entirely to blame.

The six factors which contributed to their deaths, "can in no way be blamed on the motorists, for they are directly the responsibilities of the pedestrians themselves," according to statistics.

Russia's Annual Birthrate Equals Finn Population

PARIS—(UP)—U. S. S. R.'s annual birth rate is equal to Finland's total population.

This was revealed by an article published recently in the French newspaper "Ce Soir." The figures published show that birth in Russia during 1937 reached nearly the four million mark, an increase of 13 per cent over the previous year. It is added that, while in 1926, 39 inhabitants out of 100 were illiterate, in 1937 there were 28,842,000 pupils in Soviet schools.

It was also stated in the article that there no longer exists any unemployment in the U. S. S. R. but on the contrary, there appears to be a lack of laborers. Soviet factories employed more than 27,000,000 workers in 1937 and additional workers are needed at present.

Non-Fiction Tops Fiction 2 to 1 at School Library

Circulation of non-fiction topped the fiction nearly two to one at the Mansfield Senior high school library last year in contrast to the popularity of fiction at the Public library, a report compiled by Librarian Ruth Culbertson showed today.

The report showed 13,546 non-fiction books were taken out at the high school while only 6,578 novels were in circulation among pupils and teachers.

At the John Simpson junior high library, however, the comparison was three-to-one in favor of fiction, with 12,748 novels circulated as compared with 5,546 non-fiction volumes.

Circulation of fiction and non-fiction volumes at the Bevier sub library, a branch of the Mansfield Public library, dropped off 1,351 from 1937 while 418 more periodicals from the library were read last year.

Total circulation of books and periodicals for the year was 23,347 as compared with 24,656 in 1937. Circulation of periodicals jumped to 823 from 298 in 1937.

Circulation at the Newman branch library for the year was 2,573 volumes.

Girls Find They Can Dress Well For Year on $111

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Horace Mann school girls have announced after a semester's laboratory work and research in department stores, that $111.68 would dress a woman smartly for a year—if she was willing to do her own sewing.

Charmione Wheeler, modeled the sewing classes' budget wardrobe at the school's "low-cost fashion show." Miss Wheeler said several girls she knew made their own clothes on the budget of $2.15 a week, but as for herself she "couldn't possibly find the time."

The budget, compiled after checking and rechecking material costs and figuring accessories down to the last zipper, provides for two evening gowns, an evening wrap, two coats, a suit, four dresses, two tailored blouses, a skirt, four hats, two sweaters stockings, seven pairs of shoes, undergarments, a bathing suit, slacks and shirt, beach slippers, a wool scarf, a dozen handkerchiefs, three handbags, three pairs of gloves, a raincoat, galoshes, rubbers, two $1 necklaces, two novelty belts, and four kerchiefs.

CRESTLINE—Max Levant of Pierce street, was admitted to Emergency hospital Wednesday.

Book of the Week

"The Patriot," by Pearl S. Buck; (John Day: $2.50.)

* * *

PEARL S. BUCK has kept out of China, in a literary sense, for four years and this reader, for one, has felt badly about the fact. There are dozens of competent novelists to write about America and the Americans; there is only one who can interpret the East to the West as Mrs. Buck can.

"The Patriot" is in the line of Mrs. Buck's major writing. It has the urgency and simplicity of "The Good Earth," and the tenderness of things like "The First Wife." It contains a problem, and could even be called a "study"—that accursed word, at least when applied to novels. But chiefly it is a story in which the straight line of genuine love between two genuine people is deflected by problems of nationality and the exigencies of war and national character.

I-wan is the son of very rich and very powerful Chinese. He lives in a European house in Shanghai, one in which there is always the presence of the little slave Peony, the smell of his grandmother's opium, the softness of a life completely separate from the everlasting Chinese struggle for enough to eat. By chance I-wan is thrown in jail, and stays there long enough to meet a young revolutionist. The meeting changes I-wan, and by no means in the Buchmanite sense of the word.

I-wan becomes a member of the revolutionary band at the University, and active worker as well. His groups were working for the great day when Chaing Kai-shek would come down the river, and all would rise against their masters, and the era of everything for everybody would at once begin. Chiang did come, but I-wan was amazed to find that when he arrived it was only to make an agreement with the powers that were — including I-wan's own banker father. The father promptly shipped his son to safety in Japan.

And in Japan I-wan found first a happy life, and next a wife. These things were not found without some complications, and I-wan was not allowed the life of a young married man long until the war between Japan and China began. Just as revolutionary ardor disrupted his youth, so hatreds of wartime breaks into his married life.— By J. S.

GREECE SPIKES BORDER RUMORS

ATHENS, Greece—(AP)—Greece has no intention of giving Bulgaria a corridor along the Greco-Turkish frontier as a commercial outlet to the Aegean sea.

Reports that Greece had agreed to such a concession under pressure from "a great power"—presumably Germany—were spiked by General Metaxas, "dictator" premier, in a recent speech here.

Metaxas said Greece was strongly opposed to such a policy, which would drive a wedge between Turkey and Greece, now linked by the Balkan entente.

Books For Children

• • •

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

An attractive new book for children is based on the belief in Denmark that if storks build their nest upon the roof of a house the household will have good luck. The home of Siri and Erik on a mound where Vikings were buried receives unusually good fortune in the story named "Sticks Across the Chimney" by Nora Binglon. Those children in grades above the fifth who like stories of buried treasure will not wish to miss this one.

Another interesting book recently added at the library is "The Cottage at Bantry Bay" by Hilda Van Stockum. Many adventures come to this family in Ireland, most of them because of the dog the children rescued from gypsies. The discovery of buried treasure brings a happy ending to this book too.

Story hour for children will be held at the library as usual on Saturday morning at 9:30. A program of stories which the children have requested will be told by Miss Carolyn Chamberlain.

Chatham Natives Point With Pride To Lack of Crime

CHATHAM, Mass.—(INS)—Residents of less law abiding communities have called Chatham the perfect town and most of the citizens of this Cape Cod vacation center are willing to plead guilty to the soft impeachment.

Certainly Chatham citizenry has plenty of ammunition available if it ever decided to launch a bragging campaign.

Among the town's claims to distinction are the following indications of civic superiority:

Chatham, incorporated in 1712, has never had a holdup.

No Chatham citizen has ever killed another.

No automobile has ever been stolen in the town (town historians make no mention of horse thieves).

No bank has ever failed in Chatham, nor has any bank officer ever absconded.

City, Farm Properties Up for Auction Saturday.

Two properties valued at $9,450 will be placed on sale at 10 a. m. Saturday at the courthouse on foreclosure judgments against the owners.

One of them is a 33-acre farm in Butler township which is appraised at $2,700 and the other is a property at 17 Parkwood boulevard, valued at $6,750.

Due to a mixup-in sale orders, it was announced erroneously yesterday that one of the properties to go on the auction block Saturday would be a 60-acre Sandusky township farm. That farm will not be sold until March 11.

The Butler township farm will be offered to satisfy an $878 foreclosure judgment awarded Robert C. Shilling and others against W. F. Lawhead and others.

Sale of the Parkwood boulevard home was ordered in a judgment obtained by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States against Catherine Kaler and others.

WALLED HOME KEEPS DANGER FROM TROTSKY

Stalin's Arch Enemy Ends His Second Year of Exile in Haven in Mexico.

(By United Press)

MEXICO, D. F.—Leon Trotsky, arch-foe of Josef Stalin, completes another year of exile in Mexico—one of the few countries which is willing to harbor him.

It is now two years since Trotsky and his little, golden-haired wife Natalia, landed amid the oil refineries of Tampico on the cold, blustery day of Jan. 9, 1937. They had been secretely put aboard the tanker Ruth in Norway, which departed with sealed orders for "some port of Mexico." Only after Trotsky actually safely landed was it generally known in Mexico that Tampico would be the place of landing.

The precautions taken at that time to protect the life of the ex-war commissar of the Soviets were left under the direction of Gen. Jose Beltran, ex-military attache in Washington. It was Beltran who last May captured Palomas, the hacienda of Gen. Saturnino Cedillo, under the raiding plan President Lazaro Cardenas organized to isolate Cedilla before he had a chance to do anything.

To Rivera Home.

From Tampico, Trotsky and his wife came directly to Mexico City and took up their residence at the home of Coyoacan of Senora Frida Kahlo de Rivera, wife of Diego Rivera. They have lived there ever since, but the place has been considerably enlarged and "fortified."

A big garden next door was added to the estate, so that Trotsky can plant flowers and mow the grass like any American suburbanite. The whole place, however, is walled in. The front door has been bricked in, and only the rear door is used. A "mirador," or watchman's tower, has been built in front for use of the "inner guard," comprised of secretaries and faithful Trotskyists. Outside are the two police booths, where there is a constant vigil.

The peaceful home at Coyoacan is as efficient an office as any author might desire. Trotsky has elaborate files and records. He keeps secretaries busy taking dictation in Russian, French, English, which he has perfected since his arrival. One of the secretaries is Jean Van Heijenoort, a Frenchman with a Dutch name, who was with Trotsky in exile at Prinkipo, Turkey, where he learned Russian. Heijenoort came to Mexico from Paris via New York soon after Trotsky arrived. Other secretaries come and go, mostly from New York, New Haven or other places in the United States. One who has been here over a year is Joe Hansen, who has been connected with labor publications in the middle west.

Trotsky works hard on his monumental life of Lenin, on magazine and newspaper articles. He is besieged with requests for visits and interviews, but grants few.

PROTECT HERD

Game Wardens Try to Keep Deer In Kentucky Hills.

BARBOURVILLE, Ky.—(INS)—A herd of 16 deer released in the Indian Creek section several years ago is increasing after supposedly having been exterminated by hunters. Duck and quail hunters reported seeing two fawn and a large buck. Game wardens have been watching closely to guard against illegal kills, hopeful the herd will multiply in years to come.

'Tarzan' and His Next Mate

Johnny Weismuller, former Olympic swim champ and "Tarzan" of movie fame, is shown with his fiancee, Beryl Scott, San Francisco deb. According to Weismuller, they will wed soon as divorce from Lupe Velez is final.

THEATERS

Movie writers are telling that . . . You can buy Lionel Barrymore etchings on Christmas cards this year; a Beverly Hills shop is negotiating to buy the entire wardrobe worn by Jeanette MacDonald in "Sweethearts," Patricia Morison has a hitherto unmentioned fiance who may be missing in the Chilean earthquake zone; Nancy Kelly will be exploited to the tune of $100,000, and The Virginia censorship board has okayed "Yes My Darling Daughter."

Lafe Harkness, rural comedian and harmonica player was a favorite with yesterday's audiences and the two girl singers, Jo and Alma, are pleasing. Hal O'Halloran, master of ceremonies, Kenny Carlson, ventriloquist, and Helen Diller, yodler, round out the list of entertainers. The show will remain at the Madison through today and tonight, with a new picture bill for Friday and Saturday.

HARD TO KILL

Suicide-Bent Man Slits Throat, Changes Mind.

LAKEVIEW, Ore.—(INS)—After slashing his throat and almost severing his esophagus Fred Strom changed his mind about committing suicide. He hiked three miles to the home of a neighbor to get medical aid, but the neighbor had neither car nor telephone so he and Strom walked another three miles to another neighbor. Unless China stops resisting invasion, Japan may be driven to the extreme of declaring war.

Isn't it about time for press agents to again announce that Fred Allen and Jack Benny are really "the best of friends"?

"I have been reluctantly driven to the conclusion," says an honest observer, "that nobody really understands these times—not even me!"

Dictators Come High.

ONE of the favorite tricks of dictators is to show how they ended unemployment and want in their countries, and to argue from this that one-man government is the way to human happiness and prosperity. The government-dominated German press, for instance, is publishing articles about want and starvation in America, as "proof" of their theory that democracy is a degenerate and out-of-date theory of government.

In the light of that, some figures presented by Paul Mallon, representing "months of careful personal investigation, penetrating guarded dictatorial secrets," are of interest.

In Russia, according to this survey, the average worker gets $11 a week, and in Germany he gets $12 to $15. In the United States he gets $23.32.

In Russia, the lowest paid class of workers gets $3.60 and in Germany $4.25. In this country they get $4.85 (WPA minimum).

But the big thing of interest to the worker anywhere is "real wages"—that is, his pay computed in terms of what it will buy, rather than in terms of dollars, marks or rubles. And here the comparison is even more unfavorable to the industrial slaves of the dictators. A pound of steak costs a dollar or more in either Russia or Germany, as against 35 cents here. A pound of coffee cost $12 in Russia and $1.25 in Germany, as against 23 cents here. A dozen eggs costs $1.26 in Russia and 72 cents in Germany, as against 25 cents here. So it goes, down the list of necessities and luxuries.

What is responsible for our world supremacy in the workers' standard of living? You can answer that in three words—the capitalist system, which encourages private enterprise.

City of Mansfield and Hospital.

ANY appearance of dissension between Mansfield city officials and General hospital management should be avoided, insofar as possible.

Present differences seem to arise from consideration of how much, if anything, the hospital should pay for use of city water, as related to the per day charge to the city for care of indigent patients.

General hospital, it may bear repeating, is a non-profit community institution, built from funds provided by voluntary contributions, and intended to perform an essential service for the people of this city and vicinity.

The money required for its operation and maintenance comes largely from patients able to meet their own hospital charges, but a part of the income is also from public funds for the care of indigent patients, and from the Community Fund.

Whatever, then, is paid to the city for water may be regarded as an addition to the hospital's operating deficit, which must be met in some other way, and whatever is paid by the city to the hospital for care of charity cases means an expenditure of public money to share in maintaining a necessary city institution.

Under those circumstances it should not be difficult for city officials and hospital authorities to arrive at an equitable basis of understanding.

Industrial Object Lesson.

THE president of a company that makes and sells automatic coal stokers made a reassuring speech to salesmen the other day at their annual convention. He said their concern had shown itself "depression and recession proof." It had operated at a profit every year of its existence and made a new "peak record for unit sales" in 1938. Prospects for the current year look fine.

What is the company's secret? The president did not say, but it is possible to figure out a few factors contributing to its success.

In the first place, the product is useful and makes a convincing appeal to buyers. It must be well made and well handled to make a steady advance over a period of more than ten years. Those responsible for the policies of the company have gone ahead with construction and sales plans without waiting for general prosperity to come around the corner. They have not waited for certainty on the subject of profits or taxes or any of the other problems that are frequently accused of retarding industry today.

There is, in the story of this company's steady and profitable activity, a hint of the possibilities for the country as a whole. The market for useful and desirable products is huge and, in some lines, has barely been tapped. Some hampering influences require correction, but in general all that is needed is the courage to go ahead and the skill to attract public attention.

Pacific Stepping Stones.

"WE do not covet one foot of the soil of any other nation," says the report of the house committee, approving a program for spending $53,800,000 on naval air bases in the Pacific ocean, including Guam. "The purpose of this program is to insure that no covetous nation shall secure a foot of ours."

Here is plain talk, and from the congressional point of view it should reassure the Japanese, who have been complaining about our plans to fortify such places and improve their harbor facilities. The United States has had its fling at "imperialism," which was a very catching disease around the turn of the century, and is now fully "appeased."

Japan, coming late into the game of empire-building, resents unnecessarily such moderate conveniences and safeguards as congress is providing for at Guam and other spots, on our route to the Philippines, China, Australia and India.

As nearly as can be ascertained, Mr. Ickes' poor opinion of newspaper columnists is fully reciprocated.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — The retirement of Justice Brandeis, which provides the president another supreme court vacancy to fill, emphasizes the Roosevelt stamp that has been placed upon the courts of the country.

He has made three appointments to the Supreme Court already, Justices Black of Alabama, Reed of Kentucky, and Frankfurter of Massachusetts. Two of those really counted heavily in swinging the court in the Roosevelt direction, since they replaced a pair of justices, VanDevanter and Sutherland, who consistently voted against the New Deal.

Next in importance to the Supreme Court come the 10 circuit courts, the channels through which litigation from all parts of the country reach the Supreme Court. There are 48 places on the Circuit courts. Of these President Roosevelt has filled 23 since he came into office in 1933. He has two vacancies yet to fill.

* * *

D. of C. Court Important.

OF THE circuit courts probably the most important is the circuit court in the District of Columbia. Because of its location in Washington it draws a huge bulk of litigation directly concerned with governmental administration. It is a sort of front entrance to the Supreme Court. At present there are five members on the court. President Roosevelt has appointed four. One of the former members, D. Lawrence Groner, was sufficiently satisfactory to the president that he elevated him to chief justice of the court. There is a vacancy also, which will permit one more Rooseveltian to go on.

The president's opportunities for district court appointments have been appreciably greater than other presidents. During a term in office, a president usually names 40 to 50 on the district court. To date the president has appointed 47 and has nine vacancies to fill.

Normally he should expect 15 to 20 more vacancies, since many of his district court appointments have represented increases allowed by congress in the number of district judges to handle the steadily growing amount of business.

Conceding that ultimately he will appoint 60 to 65 district court judges, that will mean approximately a third of the present total of about 180.

* * *

More Appointments.

ANY insurance analyst would tell him that statistically he has a fair prospect of one or perhaps two more Supreme Court appointments, and a half dozen more to the circuit court.

Just how long the Roosevelt appointees will be the dominating influence in the courts is debatable. He early announced a policy of appointing few judges over 60. Undoubtedly other presidents had some such age limit in mind, for a job on the federal bench is no nice place to retire to in old age. They are working courts and the old members still on them can stand it largely because they know the ropes and have a big backlog of handy precedents in mind. So Roosevelt's appointees will not necessarily last longer than those of his predecessors.

If they do as well as the average, there will be a Roosevelt aroma about the courts for perhaps a quarter century.

President Upheld In Coming Back

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—When President Roosevelt, cruising out into the Caribbean to watch Uncle Sam's naval maneuvers, let it be known that developments in connection with the foreign situation might call him back to Washington on shorter notice than he had intended, Senator Borah promptly announced that he could not imagine any foreign developments of a nature to hasten the presidential return "by a single hour."

William E. Borah

That there might be developments of capital importance to overseas countries the senator didn't dispute, but if so, he said, they couldn't conceivably be any of our business.

The subject is one on which the Idaho senator speaks with a great deal of authority. He not only is an outstanding solon, with perhaps more personal influence (despite the fact that his party, if he can be considered to belong to one, is in a minority) than any other single individual in congress; he also is a specialist on America's overseas relationships.

For a long time he was chairman of the senatorial foreign affairs committee, and all hands recognized him as a very able one. He is not chairman now; Senator Pittman is, because his Democratic side is in a majority at present. However, Senator Borah remains as senior minority committeeman. And in point of service on the committee he is half a dozen years Pittman's senior. He also is listened to at least as respectfully as the Nevada lawmaker is; possibly more so.

But Nevertheless.

Nevertheless, it seems to me, Senator Borah to the contrary notwithstanding, that things are popping in Europe and Asia of sufficient world peril, proportions and imminence to cause the president to believe he may need to be actually on the job rather than at the opposite end of some radio communication line.

Senator Borah implies the position that the president wants to be here in order to get INTO whatever complication arises. I think it would be a fair guess that he wants to report present to keep OUT of trouble.

The truth is that the executive mansion has been considerably too mysterious lately—needlessly, and, indeed, bunglingly so.

For example, we have had some airplane dickers with France, which the administration indorsed. They were quite all right—legal and according to Hoyle in every respect. But they appear to have been hushed up. Maybe that was not the intention. Probably the administration believed that what it was encouraging was all o. k., requiring no publicity. But it didn't need to hush-hush it either—giving an impression that it was something clandestine.

In brief, the administration is "smarty."

What it is doing appears to be all right, but it does it in a fashion to arouse suspicions.

Conflicting Stories.

For one thing, departmental testimonies conflict.

The state department ought to be the essential source of information concerning Uncle Samuel's foreign relationships.

Instead it has had hardly a word to say relative to them. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has been the chief witness before congressional committees. War department officials have testified that no military secrets have been disclosed to foreign investigators—except (oh yes!) SOME have been disclosed. Ditto navy departmental officials.

On the Level.

If the public had been told, on the level, what is going on, undoubtedly there would not be so much confusion.

The trouble is that the administration does not think the public has sense enough to be trusted with much information.

So let the president COME back from the Caribbean.

It will not do any good, I'd surmise. But it will not do any damage.

Timely Editorial

Should Have Known Better.

In dismissing a suit brought by Actor Richard Bennett against a New York hotel for $100,000 on account of a mashed thumb, the court remarked that "if Bennett, a mature and experienced man, knew no better than to insert a thumb between the hinge side of a door and the jamb on which the door was being fitted, he and not the employer of the carpenter should bear the loss which attended his injury."

The ordinary man whose mind doesn't run to litigation is often puzzled by suits brought against hotels and the like, for injuries to which one of reasonable caution would hardly expose himself; for example, the guest who stands under a shower and turns on a tap, instead of first testing the warmth of the water with a hand.—Detroit News.

Health Advice

Rest and Exercise In Heart Ailments.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHEN one has been told that he has heart disease—either high blood pressure with consequent heart complications, or an attack of heart pang (angina)—or when a heart murmur meaning valvular disease is discovered in a young person, the decision has to be made as to how to balance, in the future, rest and exercise.

In any discussion of the subject, you hear over and over again the statement made in the most authoritative tones, "The one absolutely essential element in treatment of heart disease, the one sheet anchor of success in its management, is rest." And then, in the next breath, the great authority begins to sing the praises of exercises in heart disease.

Must Be Balanced.

It sounds contradictory, but, as a matter of fact, it is not necessarily so, because the two things must be balanced. The publicity given the sudden death of some prominent citizen while carrying out any particular effort, such as golf, horseback riding or public speaking, accentuates the belief in the harm of exercise in heart disease. But as my friend, Dr. Louis F. Bishop, jr., of New York, points out, there is no special emphasis put on the occurrence when a man with heart disease dies in bed, where most of them do.

It is well recognized that the aged ill should not be kept in bed, but it has not been sufficiently appreciated that the middle-aged with impaired circulation can also be harmed by too prolonged bed rest.

Two groups of patients with heart disease need especially-planned exercise. It is manifestly impossible to limit very much the young person who has been found to have a heart murmur following an attack of inflammatory rheumatism. A boy of 12 is going to play baseball, and when he hits the ball he is going to run to first base as hard as he can, and forget—God bless him!—all about his murmur. And that is what he should do. Exercise is just as good for the heart muscle as for any other muscle in the body. Exercise in such a patient never causes sudden accident. It is good for him and prolongs life.

Two Classes.

The two classes of patients in which exercise must be carefully supervised are those who, after an attack of angina or coronary thrombosis, have had a period of rest and now need to be rehabilitated, and second, those with high blood pressure and some of its complications.

In the first group, graduated exercise can be begun in bed first with massage, passive movements and respiratory exercises, and following that the resistant exercises of the brothers Schott. The Oertel method of exercise consists of graded walks carried out to the point where any symptoms such as breathlessness occur. Beginning on a horizontal level, the walks are increased gradually with regard to distance and incline.

For ambulatory patients with high blood pressure, it is difficult to gauge the amount of exercise for which the heart muscle has capacity. Games with intermittent action are obviously preferable—such as croquet, lawn bowls and archery. Golf often falls under the head of intermittent but sometimes of continuous exercise.

Listen, World!

The Old-Fashioned Home Is a Flop.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT a laugh Father Time must be having as he listens to our moan over the passing of the Old-fashioned Home and our groan that "family life isn't what it used to be!" Of course it isn't! And never was intended to be! Family Life has changed with every era in our development...and we'd be in the heck of a picklement if it hadn't!

The first Family Life squatted in the crotch of some primordial tree. And what heigh-de-ho there must have been when Mom announced that The Gang was moving to a nice, warm, safe cave, whether John Henry Percival Algernon Bear-Claws liked it or not! What boo-hoos amongst the sisters and blasts from the Medicine Men! But presently John Henry was boasting about the swell li'l' place he'd picked out . . . and the whole tribe was following suit and forgetting that they'd ever lived in Anything Else But.

Then, in time, the tent replaced the cave, and the hut replaced the tent, And, with each new step, there were the same lamentations . . . the same far-reaching changes in custom . . . the same bewildered periods of transition . . . the same gradual but happy adjustment to a more suitable plan.

And now comes another step—more drastic than any heretofore, since life has changed more in the last 50 years than in any preceding 500. We are not, now, simply seeking a warmer, safer, dwelling place. We are facing the necessity for creating an entirely new institution. For the Old-Fashioned Home which was, for centuries the social and industrial center of its community, has now lost both its mission and its meaning. Big Business has taken over its chores . . . telephones, automobiles, radios have crashed its privacy . . . public amusements have wiped out its checker games and barn dances.

In isolated farm regions, the old, domestic pattern still holds. People can still afford rambling ranch houses, home-made preserves and dresses. But in the more thickly settled communities, the Old-Fashioned Private Home is fast becoming as antiquated as the dodo. Its sentimental appeal still tugs at our hearts . . . but its outrageously expensive "overhead" bankrupts our pocketbooks and wrecks our nerves.

TODAY, THE AVERAGE PRIVATE HOME IS THE WORST-MANAGED INSTITUTION IN OUR LAND. NO MAN WOULD DREAM OF RUNNING HIS BUSINESS AS EXTRAVAGANTLY AS HIS HOME IS RUN. COMPARED WITH OTHER MODERN INSTITUTIONS, THE HOME IS A CLUMSY, WASTEFUL, FRIGHTFULLY COSTLY ANACHRONISM . . . UTTERLY AT VARIANCE WITH A STREAMLINED, SCIENTIFIC WORLD.

And these statements are true even when the wife is a trained and enthusiastic worker. The race, not the wife, is responsible. We are trying to follow a program which was profitable in 1839, before the Machine Age took over . . . but which is completely impractical in 1939. Figure it out on your own cuff, taking any city block of houses as Exhibit A. Why should each one of those houses duplicate an overhead expense for basic services which could be cut half or one-quarter if the block were managed as a group? Why should each wife give her whole time and energy to a variety of chores which might be far more efficiently and economically managed by various Service Groups?

Even so, this frightful waste of time, money and human initiative might be justified if the system served any important human end . . . if it, for instance, made Family Life closer, sweeter, happier and more useful to society. But it doesn't. NO ONE IS REALLY SATISFIED WITH OUR PRESENT DOMESTIC PROGRAM. Dad rebels against the cost . . . Mom hates the aimless, monotonous drudgery . . . the Youngsters walk out on the whole affair. IN SHORT, THE OLD-FASHIONED HOME IS A TOTAL FLOP IN 1939.

Yet—men and women will always love and mate . . . adore their children . . . seek a system whereby they may be trained for useful citizenship . . . and wherein all—both old and young—may be happy and self-respecting. Can it be had? IT CAN! IT IS! We'll tell about it tomorrow. Be sure and stick around.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Have you ever held a coin in your hand and wondered where it had been, and how many hands it had been in beside your own, and what strange stories it could tell if only it could talk? Of course you have. That's why I was so interested in a $1 bill received in change from a tobacconist the other day. On the back, stamped in blue ink, were the words:

S. M. MINZLY
Money Changer
PORT SAID

Port Said is 5,125 miles from New York. To get there you have to go to Gibraltar, on through the Mediterranean and to the northern tip of the Suez canal. Its position on the map is Lat. 31° 15' 35"; Long. 32° 19' 20", and it has a population of 105,000 people.

How that $1 note left the States and by what devious ways it reached Port Said and then came back to New York would make interesting reading if one only knew. Maybe a refugee brought it, or the dee-light-ful Mr. No-el Cow-ahd, or maybe the chef on a cattle boat. Anyway, I expect to hang on to it a week longer at least before being compelled to trade it in for bacon and eggs.

* * *

ANOTHER incident with a monetary flavor has to do with a most pleasant flight from Washington to Miami the other day. On the plane was a man you all know, and as the ship settled down to the long haul he struck up a conversation with a fellow passenger.

They had a delightful visit, discussing politics and pugilism, and as the ship neared Miami the man who had begun the conversation, a lawyer, said, "Here is my card. This has been a lot of fun, and I wonder if you'll give me your card."

"Certainly," replied his companion. Withdrawing a $1 note from his wallet, he folded it twice so that the lower left hand corner remained on top. With a smile he passed it to the lawyer. "This is my card," he said.

The lawyer, somewhat amazed, accepted the bill and studied it until he saw the tiny, engraved signature: "W. A. Julian, Treasurer of the United States."

* * *

IF YOU are looking for obscurity you should have your picture engraved on a $10,000 bill. Then nobody — except a few bankers, will ever see it. Whose picture is on $10,000 banknotes? Whose, for that matter, is on $10 bills?

Well, the $10,000 gentleman is Mr. S. P. Chase, who was secretary of the treasury under the late Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Lincoln's likeness appears on $5 bills, and Mr. Alexander Hamilton's on $10 bills. George Washington gets the biggest circulation, because he is on $1 bills.

Benjamin Franklin, an important but very nosey busy-body in the early history of our country, used to make himself a tidy sum every now and then printing money for the government. He is remembered chiefly as the fellow who flew a kite in a rainstorm. But if you glance at a $100 banknote you will find his picture.

General Grant, a Galena, Ohio, boy who made good in the city, is the face on our $50 notes. And on the $20's is Jackson the savior of New Orleans. By the way, in these days of New Jefferson nickels, wonder how the ghost of old Sitting Bull is making out?

Daily Bible Thought

BE SINCERE: Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.—Psalms 139:23, 24.

A Farmer's Diary

A Good Man.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

HE IS 84, but he will never grow old, for his mind and body are always busy. His wits are as keen and active as those of a much younger man.

He wears the neatly trimmed white beard, the straight white collar and the plain round hat of a Dunkard minister. Throughout his home community he is revered and honored as a helper in time of trouble. He has preached more funerals than any other man I ever knew about. The congregation of his own village bestowed upon him the distinction of bishop.

The preachers of his creed serve with little pay—but he is thrifty. For many years he farmed and taught the district school. Now that he is older, he has taken up the writing of fire and storm insurance for the farmers of his valley.

I rode with him for nearly a whole day about the highways of his county, and he told me the names of nearly every land-owner, and something of the family history, in many cases. We came to an interesting old family cemetery, and I climbed the high wire fence to study the inscriptions on the leaning stones. I had hardly turned, until he was beside me, having likewise climbed, as nimbly as a boy.

He visited, on one rare and glad occasion, in my home—arriving late at night. The others of his party were tired from travel. He alone was as alert and interesting as ever. The secret of his tirelessness may be the fact that he sleeps as unconcernedly as he does everything else. I saw him go into a nap during a fifteen-minute wait, and awake with a little start, after several minutes of profound, easy slumber.

"I walked over the ridge to the village, today," he wrote me recently. "I saw the tops of the hills around the valley white with snow."

That sentence brought a picture to my mind. I saw him stand there, eyes upon the hills, "from whence cometh strength" — a lean, calm, strong-faced man, whose good life is nearly spent—and I admired him as one admires a stalwart, grizzled tree, "planted beside the rivers of water."

1. Full use by Italy of air and naval facilities in the Balearic islands, which lie athwart France's line of communications with Morocco.

2. Use by Italy and Germany of twelve huge air bases in northern Spain, at France's backdoor.

U. S. Plane Program Expansion Looms.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— While the house approached a vote on the controversial Guam naval project, two developments raised the possibility today that congress might expand the army air corps beyond the 5,500 planes authorized by the house.

1. The senate received from its military committee a unanimous recommendation that the army plane limit be raised to 6,000.

2. Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the committee made public a Feb. 3 letter from Secretary Woodring suggesting that no maximum be set on the number of aircraft the army could acquire.

Woodring urged that all limits be removed so that if mass production of planes made possible the acquisition of a greater number without additional cost, the army could take advantage of the opportunity.

Senator Sheppard said the war department head appeared pleased by the senate committee's recommendation for an increase in the house figure.

France Won't Bow, Daladier Warns.

PARIS —(INS)— Praising President Roosevelt as a symbol of peace for all Frenchmen, Premier Edouard Daladier left a solemn warning with Europe today that France will never bow before threats of force.

Addressing an elaborate Washington's birthday anniversary celebration at an American Club banquet in Paris, the premier declared:

"It is necessary for me to repeat to you that France will never give way to either the threat of force or blackmailing tactics."

Daladier's remarks, delivered in the presence of United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt, the Duke of Windsor, French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet and other French political and military authorities, were regarded as carrying a step further the gathering crisis in relations between France and Italy.

In his Des Moines speech, Hopkins will air a broad outline of his business policies, explaining in general terms what he proposes to do as secretary of commerce. He will present a friendly attitude toward business, but insist that government aid to business remain within the economic principles of the New Deal. He has no intention of posing as a conservative.

His visit to Iowa though is clouded by a political controversy involving Democratic State Chairman Ed Birmingham. Newspapers pictured the state chairman as trying to negotiate a deal by which Hopkins would name him commissioner of the bureau of fisheries in return for some Iowa delegates to the presidential convention. Hopkins ignored the charge while Birmingham denied it.

"Body Was a Home of Aching Pains" Says Mansfield Man

East Fifth Street Resident Now Tells How Vendol Gave Marvelous Relief by Acting as a Diuretic to Kidneys and Relieving Constipation.

Here is a truly interesting report of how Vendol has brought relief to Mr. Parlie E. Wilhelm of 13 E. Fifth St., Mansfield, formerly engineer for the Mansfield Ice Co., now retired, after suffering a long time. Read his statement given to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store, then if you suffer this way, do not delay in getting the same grand relief. He says:

"For a long time I have suffered from constitpation, and my kidneys did not act enough, so between the two, my body was a home for aching pains, and the misery in my muscles, especially my back, limbs and hips was so bad that many nights I couldn't sleep. Besides this, I was called out of bed so often that I hardly got any rest at all, and I just felt tired and wornout all the time.

"Almost every morning I'd get up with a headache and would get so dizzy that everything seemed to whirl around. Spots would float before my eyes and I'd just have to sit down until the dizziness left me.

"I often read in the paper what people said Vendol did for them, so I began taking it, along with the little Vendol laxative tablets, several weeks ago, and I wish I had started sooner.

"Vendol acted as a diuretic to my kidneys and gave the grandest relief from constipation, and that brought relief from all my other troubles. Now my nerves are quiet and I sleep like a child, for my rest isn't disturbed by my kidneys as before. Those headaches and dizzy spells have disappeared, and best of all though, there are no signs of the old aches and pains in my back, limbs and hips.

MR. PARLIE E. WILHELM

"Vendol has helped me so much I feel the least I can do is to recommend it at every chance, so that others may be wonderfully benefitted as I was."

Vendol has helped many people right here in this city and nearby towns, so why not give it a chance to help you too? Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., ask for the Vendol Man and learn all about it. There is no charge or obligation, so see him today.—Adv.

BANK AT GALION OBSERVES 75TH ANNIVERSARY

First National, Oldest Bank in Crawford County; Early History Recalled.

GALION — Besides its regular George Washington birthday anniversary holiday, First National bank of Galion celebrated its own 75th anniversary Wednesday. The bank was organized Feb. 22, 1864, and has the distinction of being the oldest bank in Crawford county. A private bank which was established in Galion in 1852 from which the present bank grew, gives it a record of 87 years of service to the community. After the National Banking Act of 1863 was passed, plans were made to reorganize the old Exchange bank, a private institution, and in 1864 the national bank was completed. The bank is located on the northwest corner of the public square here.

C. S. Crim, the late husband of Mrs. M. R. Crim, Galion's oldest citizen, was the first president of the bank. Others who have served as head of the concern are the late H. P. Stentz and the late E. M. Freese. At present the bank is headed by B. E. Place.

SCOUT TROOPS MEET

GALION—Three troops of the Girl Scouts held meetings this week. When Troop 3 met Wednesday night under the leadership of the lieutenant, Esther Ricker, plans were completed for a bake sale to be held Saturday. Phyllis Eckstein presented several of the members with parts for a play to be given soon.

Troop 1, in charge of Mary Alice Burden, met in the B'nai B'rith rooms and practiced making knots for tests.

Under the direction of Captain Mary Herwig, Troop 4 met in the American Legion rooms for a routine meeting Tuesday night.

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

Just a Few Sips and— Like a Flash — Relief!

Spend a few cents today at any drug store for a bottle of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE (triple acting)—by far the largest selling cough medicine in all of old Canada. Take a couple doses at bedtime and enjoy a good night's rest. One little sip and the ordinary cough is "on its way." Continue for two or three days and you'll hear little more from that tough old hang-on cough that nothing seems to help—if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

Ackerman of Mansfield, state chairman of national defense, was introduced.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. J. A. Jenkins, Mrs. W. R. Ecksein and Mrs. O. E. Hill.

SAFETY CADETS MAY BE TRIED BY CLEVELAND

Proposal Would Seek to Curb Automobile Traffic Toll in Metropolis.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—This city is considering establishing a "safety corps" of cadets—something new in policing—in an attempt to make Cleveland America's safest city.

The corps would be comprised of high school graduates between 18 and 22, and would be uniformed. Civil service would make personnel selections.

The cadets would perform school guard duty at intersections, carry on policing of automobile drivers, safety education and messenger service in the police department.

They also would act as ambulance assistants, traffic, paint and signal assistants, and work in the radio, crime-prevention and other divisions, but would have no power as police officers.

During summer vacations, cadets would be assigned to public parks, playgrounds and beaches and would serve as Boy Scout leaders.

The plan is that of Frank T. Jamieson, Cleveland school board member. It was developed after months of collaboration with Mayor Harold H. Burton, Safety Director Eliot Ness and Charles H. Lake, superintendent of schools.

City council is expected to approve the proposal.

City officials hope that establishment of such a corps may push the city nearer its "Safest City in America" goal, held generally by Milwaukee.

Cleveland in 1938 reduced traffic fatalities 48.6 per cent. Although a theoretical 120 lives were saved over 1937, four of America's 13 cities exceeding 500,000 population were ahead in traffic death reductions. They were Milwaukee, Detroit and St. Louis.

Concerted safety activities began in Milwaukee 18 years ago, city officials here have pointed out, while Cleveland's advance has been principally in the last three.

The proposed safety corps would be formed first of 60 cadets, then increased by 60 each year for five, until its strength had reached 300.

The personnel would be divided into three classes—C, B, and A. Cadets would be paid $60 monthly for the first 18 months, $70 for the second 18 and $80 a month for the third. The last figure would be the top rate of compensation.

The plan contemplates establishment in Cleveland high schools of a special course of study to be known as "Careers in Public Safety." This would be open to selected seniors.

BIG PRAIRIE — Funeral services were to be held at the Newkirk at 2:30 p. m. Thursday for Mrs. Margaret Porter, 899, who died Monday afternoon at her home.

Agencies Finance Recreational Plans In Flood Districts

Recreational projects which have been started in the Charles Mill reservoir sections east of Mansfield and at the Leesville and Senecaville dams in the Muskingum Conservancy district are not being financed by direct assessments against property owners, directors of the conservancy district said today.

"Conservancy district funds have never been used for any purpose except to carry out the provisions in the court-approved official plan of the Muskingum Conservancy district," the directors said. The board also made it clear that all future funds, whether received from the federal government or through flood assessments, will be used only for completing the district's legal share of the flood control program.

At the Charles Mill reservoir the Ohio Division of Conservation has made wildlife plantings and established a waterfowl and game sanctuary. Recreational projects in charge of the National Youth Administration and the CCC are in progress at the Senecaville and Leesville reservoirs.

"In these projects the conservancy district has acted only as sponsor and funds used have been and are being contributed by the federal and state agencies doing the work," the directors said.

FIT AS A FIDDLE AND RARIN' TO GO

Exuberant Attitude Displayed By Former Ailing Akron Man.

Gives Liberal Credit to Famous World's Tonic.

We don't remember where or how the above expression was born. Perhaps somewhere in the maze of antiquity the answer may be. But we do know that Mr. J. M. Knowles living at 107 S. Maple St., Akron, and employed by Firestone Tire and Rubber used the expression in describing how he felt after taking four bottles of World's Tonic. Incidentally, have you ever noticed the care that a master violinist gives his violin, or fiddle if you wish. On the road he doesn't ship it as baggage, he carries it in his arm like a babe. Protects it from heat and cold, sometimes takes it to bed with him. And tuning it up is like a sacred rite. All this in striving for perfection of tone. Perhaps a measure of perfection in health tone has been attained when a man says proudly I'm feeling "Fit as a Fiddle." And now for Mr. Knowles.

"Improper elimination was the source of so many distressing ailments for me and the change in my feelings is so great after taking only four bottles of World's Tonic that I feel 'fit as a fiddle and rarin' to go.' Getting rid of that vile taste of decaying food alone was worth what the World's Tonic cost me. I've awakened mornings so stiff and sore from tossing around, and getting up with weak kidneys, that I felt the judgment day had come. Cramps and stomach pains sometimes felt as if a knife had been drawn across the lower part of my abdomen. At times my heart seemed to speed up and gas would appear to shorten my breathing. All this was slowing me up in my work and it was like pulling teeth for my family to get me to take them to a picture show. I was always cranky and irritable and the children seemed to be frightened of me at times.

"The first bottle of World's tonic did so much to correct my lagging elimination that I decided to stay with it and I'm surely glad I did for all the conditions that constipation brought on are so much better that I feel fine and fresh and better than in a long time."

The makers of this famous medicine reach into various parts of the old countries for much of its roots and herbs compound, seeking for you the strength and health of your foreign born ancestors.

Demand Auto Firms Choose Between UAW Factions

MARTIN'S FOES FORCE 28,000 INTO IDLENESS

Leaders of CIO Group Give Chrysler Ultimatum, Long Strike Threatened.

(By United Press)

DETROIT — The automobile plants became the battle ground today in the United Automobile Workers' prolonged factional fight. It appeared that manufacturers themselves would have to decide which of the two disputing factions in the UAW they would recognize as the rightful union.

The union struggle forced the Plymouth and Dodge divisions of Chrysler corporation and the Briggs Manufacturing company's Mack avenue plant to shut down, throwing 28,000 men out of work. The company faced an ultimatum of recognizing the UAW faction recognized by the Congress of Industrial Organizations or submitting to a prolonged strike.

Starts Partial Operations.

The Plymouth plant resumed partial operation today, with one assembly line functioning instead of two as customary. It was indicated that approximately half of Plymouth's 6,000 employes were back at their jobs. Briggs was at normal production but with Plymouth not operating at capacity a short day at Briggs was indicated.

Emil Mazey, president of Briggs UAW Local 212, said the 12,000 Mack avenue plant employes would not return to work until Chrysler recognizes the "duly-elected" bargaining committee at Plymouth. The committee is headed by Leo LaMotte, president of Local 51 whose membership split when the UAW became a dual union. LaMotte's faction has CIO support.

"If the Chrysler Corp. refuses to bargain, and if the company attempts to open the Plymouth plant with supporters of Homer Martin (one of the two UAW leaders), we will not build Plymouth bodies until the controversy is settled," Mazey said.

Chrysler, as has other auto factories, recognized both groups and dealt with them jointly. General Motors, the only other corporation to state its stand in the current crisis, said it would deal directly with local shop committees regardless of their alliance.

A spokesman for the Briggs local said negotiations with Chrysler probably would start today. Chrysler officials ordered the Plymouth plant shut down when the LaMotte followers, refused a private conference, went to the assembly line and urged workers to stop production. Briggs then closed and Dodge followed because all are dependent on each other.

Filmfolk Gather Tonight To Hand Out 'Oscar' Awards

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—The makers of movie entertainment will troop tonight to a hotel banquet room where gold-plated statuettes will be passed out as symbols of outstanding achievement on the screen in 1938.

It's the 11th annual awards dinner of the motion picture academy of arts and sciences.

Some 12,000 votes, from that of the $7.50 a day extra to the $7,500 a week star, have decided the winners of the statuettes, or "oscars."

Only two of the actresses in the final poll as the best of the year, Bette Davis and Fay Bainter, can come tonight.

Norma Shearer is in a hospital for treatment of a throat infection; Margaret Sullivan a few days ago gave birth to a daughter; and Wendy Hiller, English discovery, is in Europe.

Male stars nominated were Charles Boyer, James Cagney, Leslie Howard, Robert Donat and Spencer Tracy.

A doll arrived at the office of the Richland county chapter of the Red Cross today that would delight the heart of any little girl. In fact it got a lot of attention from the adults in the office. The doll is made entirely of pliable rubber with natural flesh color and looks like a real baby. It has movable arms and legs and was made by an Akron rubber company. The doll will be used in the home hygiene classes of the Red Cross in which girls and young women are taught how to handle a young baby and to wash it and dress it properly.

He saw five. Mansfielders visiting neighboring cities yesterday commented on the number of flags displayed in these towns. . . . The entire length of the main street in Willard was lined on both sides with flags. . . . Maybe Mansfield was too busy.

BUSINESS SPURT DUE FOR APRIL

Government Economists See New Uptrend Following 'Breather Period.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A group of government economists forecast today that a further business uptrend would begin in April.

After an improvement which carried the federal reserve board index of industrial production from 76 last May to 104 in December, factory paces have been unchanged since Christmas.

The economists who advise major federal departments viewed this recent leveling off as a necessary breath-catching pause. Production, they said, got ahead of consumption, but now the two appear nearly in balance, since retail trade has been holding up well.

Government spending, home building, and possible utility and railroad spending are among the factors which the economists named in predicting further upturn.

One of the group said he expected the rise to continue generally throughout the year and to make possible a 1939 average of industrial production of 106 on the federal reserve index. This would compare with an average of 86 in 1938 and 110 in 1937. The index is based on 1923-25 as 100.

Private prognosticators also have been optimistic recently, including Col. Leonard P. Ayres of Cleveland, who said last week that "the business gains so far attained are likely to be pretty well held, and that new advances may well be expected."

Administration officials have said little publicly about the situation, although Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury told a house committee in January he looked for some improvement this year.

'EDUCATIONAL DICTATORSHIP' HIT BY COLUMBIA PROFESSOR

CLEVELAND—Dr. Harry D. Kitson of Columbia university criticized today an address delivered by Dr. Ernest O. Melby of Northwestern university before the American council of guidance and personnel associations.

Dr. Melby, dean of Northwestern's school of education, said yesterday the educational system was "an educational dictatorship more fascist than democratic."

He said teachers lacked affection for students and remarked: "We need boys and girls who will disobey their teachers, who will have the courage to strike out on their own initiative and do the things the world needs done."

Dr. Kitson, head of the vocational guidance department of Columbia's teachers college, said in a prepared statement that Dr. Melby's address "did not advance educational thinking or vocational guidance one inch."

"In advocating disobedience," said Dr. Kitson, "he is courting not democracy, not facism, not communism, but anarchy in the educational system.

"One of the principal functions of school is to instill discipline. The boys and girls of today need more discipline, not less."

Dr. Kitson added that Columbia university students did not pay tuition for the affection of teachers, but for education.

Commenting on his speech, Dr. Melby said "I meant that the educational machine today is more fascistic than it is democratic in spirit."

City, County Officials Due to Convene Friday.

City and county officials are scheduled to confer at 10 a. m. Friday at the courthouse on the proposed construction of a bridge over Touby's Run on Bowman street near the B. & O. tracks just north of Sixth street.

The session for tomorrow was called by C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of county commissioners, who said a schedule of costs and arrangements for financing the job would be set up.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword estimated cost of the bridge at from $10,000 to $12,000. The bridge will replace a dangerous structure on the heavily traveled street.

WHETRO'S BILL PUSHED ASIDE BY COMMITTEE

House Group Postpones Action on Measure for 44-Hour Week, 25 Cent Minimum.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Labor stood repulsed for the second time during the current legislature today with the virtual killing of the Whetro wages and hours bill.

Designed along the lines of the federal wages and hours act, the measure, sponsored by Rep. William H. Whetro (D-Lawrence) would have set up a 44-hour work week and a 25 cents-an-hour minimum wage scale.

The house labor committee postponed consideration of the bill last night after the last of several hearings at which labor interests were strongly represented.

Loses Amendment Fight.

The other labor defeat came when the senate and house adopted a conference committee report which knocked out a house amendment empowering the public's representative on the unemployment compensation board of review to make decisions.

Under the amendment he would not have been compelled to consult with the other two board members before rendering decisions in appeals from compensation payments.

Objection of the senate to this amendment resulted in its refusal to concur in all house amendments and delayed final action on the bill Tuesday.

Labor representatives had fought the bill since its introduction with the claims that the present unemployment compensation law is adequate and that the Republican administration was attempting a "job grab" to take control of the department from the Democrats.

With the bill through both houses it is ready for Governor Bricker's signature. He said he would sign the measure when he is prepared to name a new administrator and the reviewing board members.

Final enactment of the proposal would abolish the present executive director and three-member commission.

The report that former State Sen. Verner E. Metcalf, Marietta, would be offered a board appointment was confirmed by the governor.

NEARS WIND-UP

Hines' Defense Seeks to Have Racket Testimony Quashed.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The defense began today the summation it hopes will clear Tammany District Leader James J. Hines of racket charges after losing two motions to strike out certain testimony against him and two others for dismissal of the indictment.

Lloyd Park Stryker, counsel to the former blacksmith who became a power in Tammany Hall, moved when court opened today to eliminate certain portions of testimony of Julius (Red) Williams, a colored election district captain for Hines, and John F. Curry, onetime chieftain of Tammany.

Williams had denied any knowledge of the $20,000,000-a-year policy racket of Dutch Schultz's connection with it. Hines is accused of selling his political influence to Schultz.

Curry had testified that Hines spoke to him about police transfers.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Foes of Bund Failed to Cause Trouble Because Americans Ignored Them

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It was interesting to watch the Communist riot leaders perform in the crowds around Madison Square Garden during the meeting of Hitler's anti-American.

The Communists themselves hold meetings of exactly the same kind, but this was Hitler's night to howl, so they turned out to picket, as they say. Picketing is their preparation for rioting, but they failed because the police were superb and the crowds were, in the main, impartial.

A little resentful against both camps the crowds may have been, and disgusted because their country must endure brawling between foreign armies or give up its own freedom.

In 48th street a chant began, "We demand the right to picket." A few voices as first, then a few more, and presently as many as 50. The horse cops let them yell until the riot leaders began to press the crowd toward Eighth avenue and the Garden. At a certain point the police moved against them, firmly but without tempers, and those in front had to give way.

That started pressure toward the rear, and there was some bumping and stumbling as the people ran. A riot leader in a leather jacket ran a short way with the rest, then sensed the pressure had eased and pulled up.

Like a quarterback in a huddle he passed the word, "The workers demand the right to the streets. Everybody yell, 'The workers demand the rights to the streets.' Come on, now." And then, in a loud voice, "The workers demand the right to the streets."

A few voices, including some women's voices, took it up, and the tide set in against the cops once more.

* * *

The police were elastic. They let them advance a little, then moved them back.

The news pictures of these things, although authentic, give an exaggerated idea of the ferocity of the struggle. If you poke a policeman and he can reach you to poke you back, you probably will go down. Some people fall just from losing their footing in a mass movement.

The Communist riot leaders affect the leather or cloth zipper-jacket and hatlessness. An overcoat would encumber a riot leader in running away after promoting a fatal mixup. His mission is only to start the riot.

The innocent bystanders, or the rank and file in the forward rows, then take the bullets or the blows of the nightstick if the police are undisciplined and panicky.

The riot leader then is able to report a successful action, with so many dead and so many wounded at the hands of capitalist brutality. They have an unlimited number of lives of innocent bystanders and rank-and-filers to sacrifice for such victories.

* * *

The police of New York receive little credit for their efficiency and composure under conditions that would goad undisciplined men to bloody reprisals. Here they stood between the Communists and the German Bolsheviks, protecting each from the other.

The Communists didn't want to fight the Nazis, and they relied on the police to keep them apart. But still they booed the cops and yelled about their rights under a Constitution which they and Hitler's Bolsheviks both are trying to destroy.

The jamming and shouting around the meeting of Hitler's Bolsheviks on American soil were not general in the crowd. The disorder was directed by Communist riot leaders with skeleton mobs at their command, in the mistaken belief that the throngs of Americans casually on the streets as usual, or drawn to the region by curiosity, would fill in the gaps and take the beatings and bullets.

But the Americans kept their shirts on, so the riot flopped.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's a frightful thing to tell on a lady, but Ann Sheridan eats like a horse. And incidentally she's got me running in circles which you people down in Texas can help me out of.

It started at lunch, when Ann sniffed, then purloined the raw onions from my hamburger. (Considerately, she passed some of her loot back to John Payne, at the next table, with whom she had a love scene that afternoon.) I don't know that horses like onions, but Annie—

Well, it went from onions to the parsley she ordered to kill the odor, and from that to her fondness for the taste of bluegrass (Kentucky's kind) and for something she calls sheepshare (sheepshear?) which grows around Dallas and is delightful to eat. Once, said Annie, she saw what looked like it in her yard and tasted it, but it wasn't right. She also talked about Johnson grass, but when I raised eyebrows she clarified. "Oh, that's for horses—I don't eat it."

But there are two things I'd like. One is to know what sheepshare (?) is because Annie couldn't spell it and all I can find in the dictionary is sheep-sorrel. And the other is to call on Annie's Texas friends to airmail her a nosebagful of the succulent herb. A nice girl like Annie shouldn't be denied her appetite. Thank you!

* * *

Lee Tracy and Peggy Shannon two come-backers, are in "What's a Fixer For?" . . . Peggy is the girl they boomed as Clara Bow's successor, then overlooked too long. . . . But it's Louis Roth I want to tell about now: Louis is in his sixties, and a grandfather, and he's been taming lions some 40 years. . . . In this picture he does a taming routine, doubling for Peggy (via red curly wig), and it's all very exciting, the way he cracks his whip and shoots his pistol to keep the lions in order. . . . But after a take he forgets the whip and pistol and goes up and pets the toothy critters and talks baby-talk to them, and they all but purr. . . . He might have done it that way for the film, but Director Lew Landers thought they'd better make it look more exciting to show that Heroine Peggy is a big, brave girl. . . . And it's all sad, when the real thing won't do—for the realistic movies.

* * *

Shocking-but-Hollywood: Fritz Leiber, erstwhile Shakespearean great, playing a role in support of those great dramatic stars, Sally Eilers and Allan Lane . . . in "They Made Her a Spy." . . . Sally has her 4-year-old son, Harry Joe Brown, jr., doing a bit in the picture. . . . Kid called agent, demanded $10 a day—"but more if you can get it!"

Constance Moore, 19, another Dallas girl, adopted Marie Wilson's technique in copping featured role in "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man." Plagued producer and director until they gave up, gave her the part.

Reginald Owen, when he finishes the third act of that play he's doing is calling it "The Sexicologist"—I think he'll need a new title if they make a movie of it.

Fears Temper May Spoil Marriage

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I'm engaged to be married to the finest man in the world, but I'm afraid to marry at all, because I have such a vile temper. I flare up at the least little thing, and when I think I've conquered it, my family start picking on me, and everything starts again.

Do you think I can make this wonderful man happy, or would you advise me to give him up before it's too late? I love him so much that I'm willing to do this, and I know he loves me too. I'm 18 years old, and he's 23 with a good job. IN DOUBT.

Someone has said that a realization of a fault is more than half the battle won. So you see, my dear, there's hope in your case.

But I'm sorry you're contemplating marriage at so early an age. I'd rather know that you are going ahead in your school work, trying to fit yourself with sufficient education, in case the time should come when the money you could earn is needed.

Postpone your marriage until you are a year or two older, and perhaps in that time the temper may become less troublesome. I get so many letters from girls who have married at the tender age of 18, and they feel like old women before they're 25.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Feb. 24.

A DAY OF unusual, intriguing and probably drastic and exciting events is the augury based on an interesting chain of planetary aspects. It is a time for forging ahead to high goals, with much initiative, originality and ingenuity. This may involve some radical departures in plans, ways and means, or even in environment. Rather usual or curious angles may crop up, but all should succeed, giving much gratification, but restraint, discretion and vigilance are enjoined.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of rather unusual adventures. There may be sudden and drastic action, as well as temptation to rash, intemperate and violent behavior. These should be held in check; also there should be precaution and alertness to pitfalls and snares. Elders and superiors may be friendly disposed and ready to assist in promotion of sound plans.

A child born on this day may be eager, energetic, ambitious and well-equipped for reaching desired objectives.

An oven meal is often a fuel saver if foods are selected which require the same temperature in cooking. Although such a meal necessitates a longer cooking period, not only may the whole meal be cooked at the same time but a number of foods may also be prepared for meals to follow. It is a good idea to list such menus in a notebook and refer to it from time to time.

A useful plant forcer consists of a light wire frame into which lights of common window glass are set. An entire row of young plants can be covered with this device and a crop obtained several weeks earlier than if the plants were left unprotected. Beans, corn, tomatoes, and lettuce can be given a fine start with these impromptu cold frames and seeds sown 10 days earlier than would otherwise be safe.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Of course, my mother's explanation at once drove away all my fears," he said. "I had been subject to nightmares, and her gay, laughing suggestion that my vision of her crying in the night and talking about going away was only another one, completely satisfied me for the time.

"I never shall forget that day," he went on "It seemed as if my mother had exhausted every resource of money and time to make it a perfect one. Toys and books that I had wanted, a feast of all the goodies I liked, hours of romping with my mother — a mother who constantly laughed with me — it was a perfect day, and I fell asleep at last cuddled in my mother's arms. And going over and over in my dreams was the promise she had asked of me when the day was over.

" 'Promise me, darling, never to forget this birthday, and never to forget that your mother loves you very, very dearly.'

When he spoke again, his voice was raucous.

"She was gone when I awakened," he said. "I never saw her nor my father again."

"Oh!" I said tensely, for I sensed something terrible yet untold behind his words. "You mean—"

"I mean that they both died that night, after she had left me," he said heavily, "died in a little cottage that had been their first refuge from the world. They were shot, both of them, by my father's pistol—he was a wonderful marksman—first my mother and then himself.

"I never knew the truth till long afterward," he said as I gave a little moan of horror. "All I knew was that my nurse told me my mother and father had had to go away suddenly for a long trip, that they sent me their love and adjured me to be a good boy until they came back again. But while I did not know of the murder and suicide until years afterward, all my childhood died that morning. I knew then that I had not been dreaming and that my mother had gone away forever.

"I did not mourn for my father's absence at all. I think instead that I hated him, and I was jealous, with all a child's fierce jealousy of that truth that my mother had loved my father so much better than she had me, that she had preferred death with him to life with me away from him."

"My nurse took me away from my old home that same day. I was told only that I was going on a visit, and that I must leave most of my toys behind until I should come back again. But I sensed, with that new unchildish knowledge of mine, that I never should see either toys or home again. But I did not care. It was my mother I mourned. Nothing else mattered.

"My nurse was very kind," he went on. "She had me pick out a box full of the toys and books I liked best, and she took my dog with us in the carriage. And then we were driven from our small home to a railway station, and after a half day's journey I saw for the first time one of the palaces of the king of Transvania."

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

I LEAVE for Florida this weekend. I've been working so hard that I'll be glad to get away. Consuelo telephoned again and was told that the house was finished and that everything was in readiness for me. Henry will drive over to West Palm Beach for me in the new station wagon. Bill told us that Henry is so proud of the wagon that he drives all over town in it and prefers it to Consuelo's beautiful imported car. Henry and his wife are model servants.

I do hope that Consuelo will be able to come down to Palm Beach week-ends as she plans to do If she doesn't, I'll go over to Miami some week-ends to see Helene. Consuelo says that she wants Helene and Igor to come over to the house some week-ends. Bill will be down in Florida too, but he will be at St. Petersburg and Orlando. But of course he is planning to be at Palm Beach or Miami when he can.

Can't say that I'm very much intrigued by the Victorian style sea togs with all the braid and ruffles and sawtooth edgings.

For skiing.

Think I'll stick to my smart satin jersey suits and my slack and jacket outfits. I think that there is nothing smarter than beautifully tailored slacks and jackets and I intend to go on wearing them. I am getting some smart cotton and silk and linen dresses and jackets for general wear and also a couple of suits in sheer woolen, one in a very pale blue, the other in shell pink. Then I've got the beautiful knitted silk frocks I brought home last Summer. With a couple more evening things, guess that I'll pass muster even in smart Palm Beach.

If some of the beach things are odd, there's nothing wrong about the new winter sport resort things This typical skiing outfit is perked up by the white soft leather jacket which is lined with navy woolen to match the navy blue trousers. Navy blue leather belt slips through the pocket-tops of the jacket Two smaller pockets are cut into one with the yoke. The scarf, attached to the hat, ties under the chin. It is of white knit with large navy circles. The gloves match.

For deep-fat frying, have deep kettle one-half to two-thirds full of melted fat or oil.

Economical Suggestions For Table

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

There's always room for a thrifty notion, the sort that would have delighted Benjamin Franklin, whose birthday was observed last month. Franklin had many interesting thrifty notions and so we dedicaate these dishes to his ever-glowing memory.

All-bran and buttermilk biscuits have the place of honor. The recipe requires three-quarters cup buttermilk, one-half cup all-bran, one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, teaspoon salt, and one-third cup shortening. Soak all-bran in buttermilk. Sift the flour, baking powder, salt and soda together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse corn meal. Add soaked all-bran; stir until dough follows fork around the bowl. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly a few seconds. Roll or pat to one-half inch thickness and cut with floured cutter. Bake in lightly-greased pan in hot oven (450° F.) about 12 minutes.

Thrifty Rolls.

Quaker City rolls come next, a right thrifty notion. When making bread, keep part of your dough for rolls. Before baking, brush top of rolls with melted butter, milk, or a mixture of two parts slightly-beaten egg whites and one part water, to help browning and give a tender crust. Good for supper, fresh and crisp, with plenty of hot coffee.

Fish cutlet recipe calls for one tablespoon finely-minced onion, two tablespoons cooking oil, one-quarter cup cornstarch, one cup milk, three-quarters teaspoon salt, one egg yolk, one teaspoon lemon juice, two cups shredded salmon or tuna fish, one and one-half cups fine crumbs, one egg, two tablespoons water, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, pepper, paprika, mustard. Mix egg yolk and mustard with fish. Cook onion in hot oil over low fire for three minutes, taking care not to brown. Stir in cornstarch and cook two minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in milk gradually, adding seasonings and lemon juice; stir until smooth; boil two minutes. Add fish. Spread mixture on plate and chill. Form into cutlets, dip in crumbs, egg beaten with water, then crumbs again.

Let stand for a few minutes, then fry in deep fat heated to 385° F. until light brown. Drain on soft paper.

Ice Cream Recipe.

Do you like ice cream? We hope you approve of this recipe. It requires one and one-half cups milk, one cup sugar, two tablespoons ground coffee, two egg yolks, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups heavy cream, one cup chopped Brazil nuts. Heat milk and coffee in double boiler Put half the sugar in heavy frying pan and stir until melted to light brown syrup. Stir in remaining sugar. Strain coffee mixture through a cloth. Add syrup (caramel) and stir over hot water until dissolved. Beat egg yolks with salt; stir into hot mixture. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until custard coats spoon. Add cream and nuts. Pour into freezing trays and freeze for three to four hours. It makes one quart.

Philadelphia Date Loaf requires two cups flour, two-thirds teaspoon salt, two teaspoons phosphate baking powder, two tablespoons each shortening and sugar, one cup dates, chopped, and three-quarters cup milk. Sift together flour, salt, baking powder; cut in shortening; add sugar, dates and mix to a dough with the milk Knead slightly. Place in a greased bread pan and set aside for 10 mintues before baking. Bake in 350° F. oven 35 to 40 minutes.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

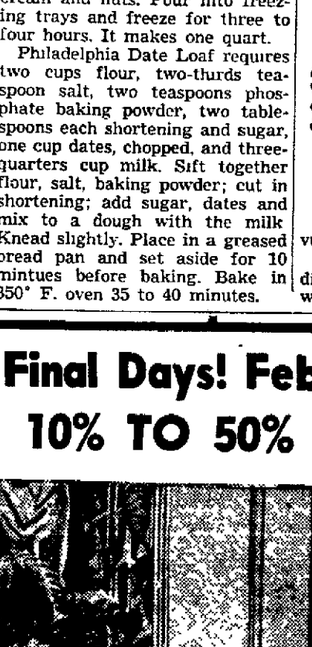
"The Authority on Authorities"

FAVOR THE FITTER

Confronted with a choice between two suits for your side's final contract—one of them an immense string in your own hand and the other one in which you have a splendid fit for your partner's bid, there should be little argument Except upon the rarest of occasions, you are better off to let him play it.



(Dealer: South. East-West, vulnerable.)

The main reason is that it affords a lot of entries to both hands, and a safe way to go back and forth conveniently. Another is that you thereby obviate the danger of a defensive ruff of that suit.

A third is that it offers the possibility of a cross-ruff if that be found advisable after the opening lead.

North began the bidding of this deal with 1-Club. East bid 1-Heart, South 2-Diamonds, West passed and North bid 4-Clubs, to compel a game. South took this out into 4-Diamonds and North, having his fine fit for the diamond suit, decided there should surely be a slam in the hand. He consequently called 6-Clubs. West had sense enough to keep his own counsel, instead of doubling.

Guessing from the bidding that the second round of hearts would be ruffed, and that North was surely prepared for a lead of that suit, East decided to try the unorthodox lead of the diamond 10. West of course trumped this. Steered away from a heart return by the fact that his partner had clearly considered his own suit hopeless. West decided to return a trump. He had the great good fortune of finding his partner with the ace, and therefore got a chance to ruff a second diamond, putting the declarer down two tricks.

North's bidding was sound up to his very last call, which should have been 6-Diamonds instead of 6-Clubs. An overtrick was waiting at diamonds.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

How would you recommend bidding this deal, after South opens with 1-Spade?

Hand Gestures Disturbing

By MME. QUI VIVE

Hands have not only improved in appearance but in form. They have taken on character, they look more capable. A woman who has everything including too much leisure nearly always has soft oimpled paws. Look at the gloves the dear girls wear. Big paddy things. The change from number fives to sevens proves that the sisters have stepped along the way of sense and well being. No time to pack the little mits in gloves that are skin tight.

There's no reason why any woman should have shabby looking hands. By wearing gloves while doing rough work about the house the tender cuticle can be protected. Even laundry work doesn't take a toll now that we have bland high grade soaps for that purpose.

* * *

Those semi-liquid lotions that dry soon after application will keep any hands in fine form. But to combat the drying effects of soap a lubricant should be massaged into the flesh at least twice a week. Don't fail to attend to these duties. The hands won't grow old, and wrinkle before their time.

Watch the behavior of your hands, the manner in which they move. Professional dancers have hand movement down to a fine art. Note the exquisite pose of the fingers, which gives them a petal-like loveliness. Observe the flexibility of the wrist, the relationship between the movements of the hands and the body. You'll be able to pick up a lot of suggestions that you can put to good use.

* * *

If you have the habit of placing your hands on your hips, pose them with the fingers turned backward.

Don't rub your chin or your nose; hands look ugly doing those senseless tricks. Don't offer a limp, refrigerated fin when shaking hands; give a friendly, warm pressure. Don't fuss with dress ornaments or necklace; if you do you'll make people jittery. Nobody feels at ease with the girl who is ever on the move. One prefers the calm dear heart who is at peace with herself, the world, and the inhabitants thereof. She sits pretty with hands at rest.

If you have any difficulty in giving children powders, take a banana and cut it in half lengths. Scoop out some of the fruit, making a hollow in the middle. Put the powder into it, place together again, and give to the child to eat.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

READ THIS FIRST:

Asked to leave her boarding house because she had no money to pay rent, Lona Ackerman finds herself stranded on a city street. That night the man who had taken Lona's room finds her on a park bench. He offers to treat her to something to eat.

CHAPTER 3.

THE RESTAURANT seemed unbelievably warm and cozy to Lona after her lonely vigil on the park bench. By the time she had finished her second cup of coffee—blessed coffee!—she found herself pouring out to this utter stranger who had befriended her things she hadn't mentioned to a soul since she came to the city almost seven years ago.

Something about him seemed to invite confidence. Perhaps it was the stimulus of the meal he had just bought her—her first real meal in two days! Or perhaps it was the fact that his brown eyes kept reminding her of Tiny, the spaniel, and of her old life.

Funny to keep comparing this good-looking young man to a dog, but she couldn't help it. There was in his eyes the same sympathy, the same yearning she had often seen in Tiny's. And, after all, Tiny had loved her, and she had loved him. Talking to this stranger was, somehow, like talking to Tiny. He seemed to understand without asking questions. She even found herself telling him about—her father.

"It was daddy who named me Lona." She laughed a little ruefully. "I've often thought in the last years that he must have known, even then, how it would fit."

"It's not only now," she went on. "It was that way back home after my mother died, and father—you see, my father's—not dead. He didn't leave me that way. He—they sent him away."

* * *

Somehow the words seemed to be wrung from her. The sympathy in the brown eyes seemed to be drawing them out. "He— my father killed a man."

The eyes narrowed at that, and she saw the hand that was taking a cigaret from his pocket pause, and grip itself into a hard, white fist. A sense of disappointment filled her. Was he going to be like all the rest? It came to her, then, just why she had felt impelled to tell him all about it. She had been hoping . . .

"They sent him to the penitentiary—for life," she brought out slowly.

"The poor devil." He looked away from her and she saw that his hands trembled. A drawn look came into his lean face and for a second he seemed years older than she had thought.

"It was my fault," she went on, when he did not speak again. "The man—insulted me, and I told my father. I never thought he'd kill him. He was so gentle, father was. I've always blamed myself—"

"Don't, girl!" The brown eyes were oddly pleading. "I don't like to hear you talking about such things. A—kid like you! I had a friends once who—died in the pen," he explained. "I—know a few things."

Lona's heart warmed to him anew. Usually when people found out about her they looked at her in a sort of curious horror. But in spite of his first hesitation, he seemed to have only sympathy.

"Oh, no!" she cried out. "You mustn't."

Across the white-topped restaurant table she studied his lean face. It was browned and sun burned as if he worked in the wind and sun. He was good looking in a rugged sort of way. His features, taken separately, were not handsome; a big nose, a curving, sensitive mouth, and a jaw that would have been square but for its almost painful leanness. But taken as a whole, with the wistful brown eyes to set it off, it was an attractive face.

"Well, what's the verdict?" he asked with a whimsical little half smile when she had studied him for a long moment.

"I was just thinking that I had told you all about myself, and I don't even know your name."

"Claridge. Jim Claridge's my name." He bowed, and snipped the ashes from his cigaret into the heavy white ash tray. "I'm 29 years old. Be 30 my next birthday. I've only been in this man's town three days, and I'll probably leave it again within three months. I'm a structural iron worker. My firm has the job on the new terminal building down by the square.

"I was born on a ranch in California, and was raised out west. I've worked, so far, in 26 different cities in these United States. Will probably see 26 more before I'm through. I haven't any relatives, and nobody to support but myself. And so I make a hobby of picking up girls from park benches and seeing that they're taken care of until they can find work." He hunted in his pocket as he spoke, and pulling out a bill, put it into Lona's hand as it lay on the table.

* * *

For a moment she stared at it. Then she looked up at him. "Oh, no!" she cried out. "You mustn't! I can't take this. Why, I never saw you until tonight. I can't take—money, from you."

"What are you going to do?" He shrugged. "You can't go back to the park. There's a decent looking hotel a couple of blocks down the street. I'll see that you get a room for the night. Tomorrow you can start hunting a new boarding house, unless you'd rather I went to the hotel, and you to your old room at Mrs. Peterman's."

"I couldn't go back there!" Lona shuddered. "I never want to see that woman again!"

"I thought you'd feel that way. It's the hotel, then." He picked up her suitcase matter-of-factly, and before she quite knew what was happening, Lona found herself out in the street, his hand on her arm, the bill he had given her still clutched in her hand.

A protest rose to her lips again as he led her into the hotel lobby and up to the desk. "I shouldn't let you," she said weakly. "It's not right. I shouldn't let you do it!"

But when he pushed the pen into her hand, she found herself signing the register, conscious of the curious eyes of the clerk going from one to the other. A little lump came to her throat and she swallowed. It was so nice to be cared for! Nobody had done anything for her since her father—went away. It was so good just to shut her eyes and let things happen!

"I'll pay you back," she told him, huskily. "As soon as I get a job. I never thought anybody could be so good."

"Listen, girl." He looked down at her, and in the brown eyes there was a tenderness that almost shamed her. "I lied when I said I didn't have any folks," he said, oddly. "I have. I've got a sister. She's just about your age. And I think she must look something like you do. I haven't seen her for years, but you make me think of her. I'd hate to have her wandering in the park without any money. Do you see?"

"I—see. And I'll pay you back. I'll get a job soon, tomorrow maybe. I have to get a job soon!" She seemed to be trying to convince herself as well as him.

"Of course you'll get a job," he assured her. "A girl like you can always find a job."

"I'd scrub floors, anything—anything!" she burst out. "There just doesn't seem to be anything."

"I'll keep my eyes open," he told her. "If I hear of anything I'll call you. And what do you say you meet me tomorrow night and report progress? I'd sort of like company for dinner." He grinned suddenly, and held out his hand.

* * *

Solemnly Lona took it. And in spite of her efforts to control them, the quick tears came again at his touch.

"What's the matter, girl?" he asked. "Is it that you don't trust me? Don't you think I'm on the level? If you're afraid of me, I'll clear out, and you won't ever have to see me again. Is that what you want?"

"Oh, no, No!" Lona's voice rose sharply. "It's not that. I'll meet you tomorrow night or any other time you want to see me. It's just that you're so—so good. I didn't think there was anyone like you left in the world, anywhere!"

Sally Rand Puts Dancing Career Before Marriage

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Marriage is definitely out for Sally Rand, shapely fan and bubble dancer.

"It just wouldn't be practical in my case. I've never been married or do I contemplate ever marrying. Career first," she explained.

Romance, however, is not tabooed. "I like the older men best because they always give you what the younger men promise," the fan dancer coyly admitted.

Sally said her fans cost $200 a pair, she keeps ten on hand, and she needs have one pair repaired each week at a cost of $40 a fan.

"The bubbles cost $23 apiece," she said, "but I own my own balloon factory in Ravenna, O. Last year I used 400 bubbles. When I'm holding one too close to me when it breaks, it always leaves a blister. It takes 24 hours to make one of these bubbles. I sell a great many to the government, the weather department using some and the navy using many in target practices."

Questions Tell of New Jobless Insurance Act

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is another of a series of questions and answers pertaining to the new Ohio Unemployment Compensation Act.

Q—If a worker is in doubt about his eligibility for benefits for partial unemployment, how can he find out if his earnings are less than 60 per cent of his average weekly wage?

A—Such workers may receive a determination of their average weekly wage by filing a claim for benefits at the nearest local office of the unemployment compensation commission.

Q—How long is the waiting period the claimant must serve before he can collect benefits for partial unemployment?

A—The waiting period for partial unemployment is governed by the worker's loss of wages. After registering for work and filing a claim, he must wait until his loss of wages equals what he would lose in three weeks of total unemployment.

Q—How long can a worker receive benefits for partial unemployment?

A—He can never receive more than 16 times his benefit for one week of total unemployment, in any one benefit year

Q—Can a partially unemployed worker ever receive as large a benefit as one totally unemployed?

A—No, if they have the same wage basis.

Q—If the largest benefit payable to a totally unemployed worker is 50 per cent of his average weekly wage, but never more than $15, and the largest benefit payable for partial unemployment is 40 per cent of the average weekly wage, how can a worker receive as much for partial unemployment as another for total unemployment?

A—Benefits are never figured on a wage basis of more than $30 per week. But a totally unemployed worker whose average weekly wage was only $20 per week, would receive a $10 benefit, while a partially unemployed worker whose average weekly wage was $30 per week could receive a benefit of $12.

Q—Why?

A—Because benefits are figured on the unemployed worker's past earnings. The amount he earned per week will determine the amount of benefits he can collect if he becomes unemployed.

Q—Supposing I had $300 in the bank when I became unemployed. Must I report the amount of my savings when I file a claim for benefits?

A—No. Your personal savings have nothing to do with your right to job insurance benefits, if eligible.
